Made in the illegal settlement of Barkan in the West Bank

Products to Boycott

Why? Thousands of Christians in the Holy Land have issued an urgent plea to churches of the world, asking for boycott and other economic measures to end Israel’s brutal and illegal occupation of their land. Items on the following pages are made in illegal settlements in the occupied West Bank, beyond Israel’s internationally recognized borders. These segregated colonies built on Palestinian land violate international law. Though opposed for many years by the United States and other nations, they continue to expand.

What does our denomination say? For years, United Methodist General Conferences have passed resolutions titled “Opposition to Israeli Settlements on Palestinian Land.” In 2012, our General Conference passed a resolution that “calls on all nations to...prohibit the import of products made in Israeli settlements on Palestinian land.”

Will this make a difference? Yes! Boycott is already causing settlement companies like the ones shown above to find legal locations elsewhere. At least seven large companies have moved production out of the settlements to avoid or end boycotts. More have announced they will do so.

UMKR is pleased to announce that SodaStream, which was featured here, has moved its operations out of the West Bank settlement industrial zone of Mishor Adumim. This followed a global boycott of the company’s products, resulting in a steep decline in sales. It shows that boycott is an effective tool for changing company behavior. Thanks to all who took part in this successful movement for change.

Royalife Linens
Sold as Williams Sonoma & Pottery Barn brands

Williams Sonoma, which owns Pottery Barn, imports linens from Royalife. Their labels say “made in Israel,” but many of the linens with this label are actually made in the illegal settlement of Barkan in the occupied West Bank.

Ahava

Ahava products are made in Mitzpe Shalem, an illegal settlement, with minerals and mud from the Dead Sea. They are sold in department stores and pharmacies, and often appear in TJ Maxx, Marshall’s and Ulta. As a result of boycott pressure, Ahava is considering a transfer of its operations out of the West Bank. Until then, avoid them!

Plastic Shapes from Barkan
Carried by Toys R Us, Walmart, Edushape, etc.

These colorful interlocking shapes are made in the illegal settlement of Barkan in the West Bank. Toys R Us sells them as part of its “Imaginarium Discovery” line. They are sold under the “Interstar” brand by other stores.

Smart-Fab
Disposable art, craft and decorative fabric.

Smart-Fab is sold online through Staples, Walmart, Office Max and other national retailers, as well as school supply stores. It is made by a company called Dispobud in the illegal settlement of Barkan, in the West Bank.
