

Hearing Things...

Hello! Again, I love Gina's word from the Lord yesterday about using this time to build ourselves up in our faith. It chimes in with what I believe the Lord placed in my heart tonight on the way home. Reminding me personally that the Lord will use whatever He chooses to get His point across, to show people that He's real and that He loves us.

1 Corinthians 1:27 Amp. - But God has selected [for His purpose] the foolish things of the world to shame the wise [revealing their ignorance], and God has selected [for His purpose] the weak things of the world to shame the things which are strong [revealing their frailty].

The Lord was reminding me that although there are tons of people who are walking around thinking they won't get this corona virus – there are still tons more who are very concerned and taking precautions as they see fit.

With this, He was reminding me that He will use it all for His glory. His plan is bigger. He reminded me of the above verse and that He really wants each of us to come to a place where we are constantly pointing to Him, where we are ok with not having the answers because we know He does! (Something I totally have a problem with sometimes!)

I believe He wants to use this time where many of us are confronted with our doubts and fears of the unknown and give us a peace that goes beyond what we can fabricate in our own selves. But we have to seek Him to find it! He will use things that don't make sense in the natural realm to reveal our true nature in hopes that we will see a need to pursue Him and that we would want personal time with Him.

How quiet do you have to be to hear your heart beat? Even with practicing social distancing, we can find ourselves wrapped up in trying to figure out the next thing to do to keep our kids occupied, the next meal, the next game, the next conversation, the next online order, the next post or the next video. It's not like we were all sent out to the woods with no electricity. Wouldn't that be a hoot?! When we get quiet enough we will start to hear. What are you hearing today?

Jeremiah 33:3 - (AMP) - 'Call to Me and I will answer you, and tell you [and even show you] great and mighty things, [things which have been confined and hidden], which you do not know and understand and cannot distinguish.'
