

It's time for some hard truths

Now that we're seeing the backside of 2020 and preparing to enter a new year, it's time we vowed to start that new year by speaking the truth about ourselves to ourselves and to anyone else willing to listen.

We've come through a tumultuous twelve months of a nasty virus that's killed hundreds of thousands of Americans and will probably kill many thousands more before it's done with us. That said, the virus has brought out the absolute worst in many of our political leaders. Governors, especially, have been among the top offenders when it comes to exerting their power over us, all in the name of an overused and much abused phrase - an abundance of caution. Political candidates, too, like Joe Biden and his crowd have found the virus to be a handy weapon to use in the fight for public office, happily criticizing the Trump Administration for anything and everything it did to combat the spread.

The World Health Organization, the CDC and the NIH have also twisted and turned like a circus contortionist with their various pronouncements about everything from the value (or not) of masking to attacks on medicinal treatments for the virus. We've been lied to by a great number of so-called 'health professionals' whose agendas appear to be more political than medical.

We've surrendered our streets in many of our communities to radical gangs who have been masquerading as 'social activists' bent on redressing the 'racial inequities' and alleged 'systemic racism' and brutality in our police departments. Lily-livered mayors and city councils have looked the other way and pretended that BLM and Antifa and others had legitimate claims to the public square and condoned their violence, burning and looting of public and private property.

We've allowed our school systems to adopt blatantly false revisionist history curricula in over 4,500 schools (the '1619 Project'). While churches were shut down and congregations told to stay home and pray, we held back our criticism. When statues of our heroic figures of the past were defaced and destroyed Leftist mayors in cities all over America did nothing to stop the destruction. We've been talked into believing that the pursuit of identity politics is an equitable substitute for meritocracy and watched as the Left hails the appointments of unqualified people to positions of power simply because their skin color or their reproductive organs are the 'politically correct (right) ones.'

We let our Congressional Representatives attack our President for a phony Russian collusion relationship for four straight years and then allowed them to get away with their false accusations without so much as an apology for their wrongdoing when he was found innocent. We stood by when the Democrat establishment accused the President of being a racist because he dared to secure our borders and protect us from illegal immigrants who have fled prosecution and embedded themselves into many of our communities AND who have committed additional crimes against law-abiding legal residents.

We didn't push back hard enough against the mainstream media and social media tech companies for censoring our social media posts and suspending our accounts and for not reporting serious news stories like the Biden family's dealings with foreign adversaries. We watched while peaceful citizens were arrested for trying to protect their property and their own lives from attacks by Left-wing thugs.

We saw major retailers bow to pressure to create new transgender bathrooms and we allowed biological males to compete as women in women's sports contests. We buckled under for anti-American displays of 'taking a knee' instead of standing for our national anthem for fear that we would be labeled as racists for opposing or criticizing them.

And, to cap it all off, we've seen judges and non-legislators change the election rules in many states in advance of a Presidential election to enable fraudulent votes be cast and counted and ultimately ignore the will of the people... and elect a 78-year old career has-been politician to the highest office in the land.

Now we are being told by that same man that we must come together and unite around him 'for the good of the country' while his surrogates do everything in their power to stick their thumbs in our eyes and harangue us for being unpatriotic stooges of the 'orange man.' We have now reached the tipping point.

There is just so much that Americans will take before they rise up and intensify their opposition to every one of the transgressions perpetrated by the Left to social engineer and radically transform our great country. These are the truths that characterize the America of the last four years and that will make the year 2020 go down in history as the year Americans surrendered their sovereignty to the lies and policies of the Left.

The BIG truth is that 74 million Americans have had enough and are not willing to unite around a false flag that doesn't reflect their values or their view of the once greatest democracy on Earth. No amount of cajoling or pressure from a Biden government or enough c'mon mans that will make it happen. We will NOT unite at ANY price nor will we accept a wholesale abandonment of our Constitutional rights and simply go along to get along. Those days are long gone. If we want to save America there is but one course to take and that is to fight and push back against any and all attempts to turn us into a land of passive bystanders and second class citizens to an army of collectivist ideologues. Good riddance and adios 2020.
