

COSMOLOGY OF CHRIST'S BIRTH

The Cosmology of Christ's Birth series does not venture to guess or speculate on the actual date of Jesus Christ's birth but rather emphasize and focus on the peculiarities of the cosmology that perhaps might give additional clues as to the window of the probable time of the King's 1st Advent. This illustration features the depiction of the cosmic configuration of Virgo as a microcosm of the Great Pyramid of Giza pattern. The 3 main stars that make up the sacred divine triangle are Regulus-Arcturus-Antares. When the Giza Great Pyramid pattern overlaid and elongated over Virgo, it approximates the angles of the Grand Gallery, the main 4 shafts that correspond to the arms and legs. Spica corresponds to the Queen's Chamber and the King's Chamber corresponds to the womb region of Virgo where many planets are seen as being 'birthed' out of Virgo etc.

Along the line of the Cosmic Virgo Pyramid, the angle of the ascending and descending slopes correspond to several stars of the constellations that are noted by orange dots. If there is an association with the Great Pyramid to Christ's Angle in alignment to Bethlehem it would thus be appropriate to also associated the Great Pyramid pattern to the constellation of Virgo itself, especially during the visitation of the Magi.

The Cosmic Virgo Pyramid has an angle of approximately 144°. This same angle is seen when a measurement is taken of the actual pyramids of Giza complex from the apex of the smallest pyramid to the apex of the Great Pyramid. From the apex of the Great pyramid, the angle measures 52°, the same as the actual slope of the Great Pyramid. On a map, from the Great Pyramid of Giza to Jerusalem, the angle is approximately 33°.

Based on observable astronomical correlations, perhaps the Wiseman of the East did find the King, but not new born as traditionally dissected. By the time the Noble Astrologers of the Persian court reached Bethlehem, Jesus was already born and perhaps 1.5-2 years of age. As the planet Jupiter became stationary over the southern sky in direct alignment to the Cross and Coma Berenices, the Wiseman could have astronomically triangulated the precise location within Bethlehem even.

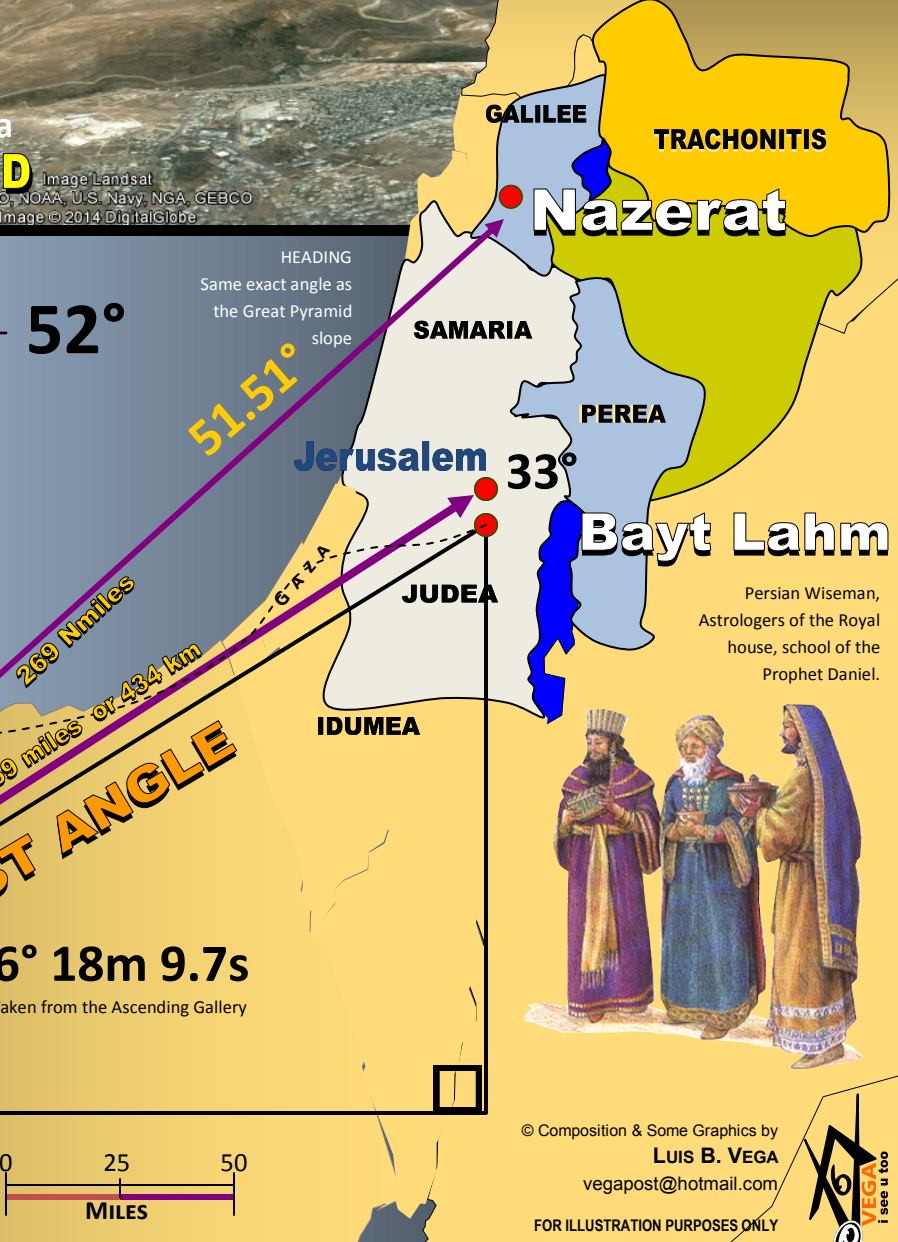

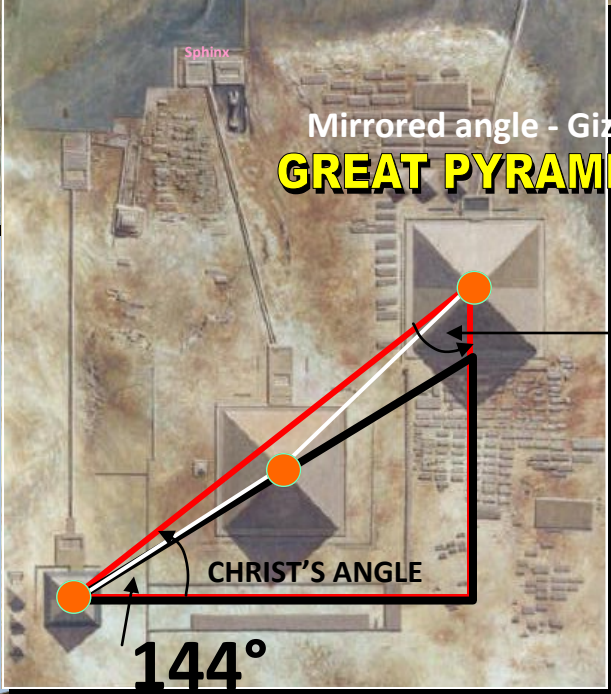

From the possible Winter Solstice visitation thereafter the Wiseman left another way back to their country and Joseph was warned to leave for Egypt to avoid the murderous wrath of Lucifer through Herod in that he had ordered to have all the infants 2 years and younger killed in Bethlehem and sounding villages.
