FAMILY HISTORIES IN SOCIETY ARCHIVES

We wrote in the last issue of "Footprints" that we would print a complete list of the holdings in our archives and we will do so in the near future. In the meantime, following is a list of the family histories that have been completed, or at least partially completed, and placed in the archives.

As one who has spent years pouring over census microfilm, and having just received and completed the 1980 census form, several thoughts come to mind.

With space allocated in 1980 for seven persons (presumably papa, mama and five other household members), we thought of the 1850's and 1860's when it was not at all uncommon for a household to include papa, mama, 8 or 9 kids, an assortment of grandparents and/or aunts and uncles and cousins by the dozens, plus a boarder or two.

The census of yore was taken in person rather than by mail. Having been born with a nutty sense of humor and more than our share of imagination, we visualized papa asking the enumerator, "But what's a bathroom?" while mama scrubbed the kids with homemade lye soap in the wash tub in their one- or two-room cabin.

We will not be among those present 72 years from now when the 1980 census can be opened. Instead, we plan to be floating around up there on our little white cloud, halo shining and wings fluttering, as we observe the scene below. We plan to chuckle a little as some poor genealogist in the year 2052 ponders over all those little black dots and says, "Gee, I wish we could buy a house for a mere $200,000. We also want to observe the facial expressions when he or she discovers that great-grandpa and -grandma were partner/roommate rather than husband/wife.

Well over a century ago Abraham Lincoln observed: "Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry and enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuring that his own be safe from violence when built."

Fifty-three American citizens are being illegally held in Iran by a mob of outlaws (we refuse to call them "militant students"), with the encouragement and backing of a religious zealot. They have violated or ignored every rule of international law and will have no recourse in the world courts when their house is destroyed and comes tumbling down.
