History: The Sanchez Family migrated from Sahuayo, Michoacán, Mexico. Martin Sanchez, the artist, arrived at a very young age. He always aspired to get out of the poverty that surrounded him in Mexico. The poverty which he lived in during his childhood gave him the drive to save and reuse items that the majority consider useless and discard. Although for him, and many others that can relate to this kind of poverty, these type of items are considered treasures. With his ingenuity, creativity, and drive he has rescued average items and has given a new meaning to going green.

Description: Deborah Seibly will lead this photo-walk and will be available for photography questions or group needs for this scheduled event. No one will want to overlook the many unique details while wandering this sculpture garden.
