

I feel strongly that some of you are balking at things. Whether it's the current direction your life has taken, or you are in a quandary about how hard life is right now, or you just don't like how people are acting around you.

Even if you don't like where you are right now, He in this! YES! He orders the steps of the righteous man, which means He is ordering your steps. Eternal purposes are rooted within the events of our life. Do not kid yourself. Just because it's hard, doesn't mean God isn't working things out. You see, the enemy will always try to cause doubt by casting a shadow over truth. Today you need to cast that away from you!

I get it, right now, you cannot see God's purposes and doubt has cast a shadow on the truth. You have got to avoid the "doubts." Avoid them with everything you have. Cast, push, shove or whatever you have to do to get them away from you.

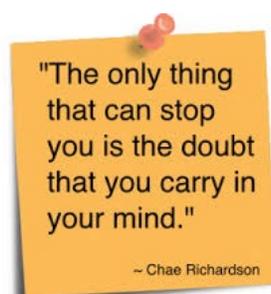

There are times when inwardly, emotionally or physically you are engaged in difficult things. It is God who knows just how to care for you through them. Each time you look to Him you cast away doubt. As you continue to cast away doubt, He shapes you into something that will reflect His glory.

Did He give you gifts? Then use them! Don't doubt what He has given you. The Lord is speaking about your paths direction. He is wanting you to know the direction He sends you must be walked out in faith knowing that He sent you this way. All the things you encounter along the way are known to Him and part of the path's purposes.

Listen, you may not always understand the purposes of God or the seasons of God. You may not always see the problems when you start off on the path that He is directing, but either way the problems along the way cannot supersede the purposes of God.

Friends, what did He say to you? Did He say "go this way?" Did He say "do this?" Did He say "Trust Me?" Did He say "Here's a gift?" There is a good reason behind the words He has spoken to you. You've got to trust Him. If He called you to something, trust Him through it. Even if it is harder than you ever imagined.

God will perfect or complete what He starts. God has a plan. When things seem beyond our control, cast away doubt and meditate on the truth of what He has said.
