

PURSUIT LA

social networking • video games

By Niko Takowsky

niko@nikotakowsky.com

AMAZING. This year again, E3 was an over-the-top event at the Los Angeles Convention Center with a line-up of awesome new and upcoming games that everybody was excited to see. Here are a handful of gaming favorites that made an appearance, or are set to debut in 2015/2016.

One I was looking forward to seeing was The Legend of Zelda which is being released on the Wii U. The Legend of Zelda is a successful franchise made by Nintendo. Zelda is an awesome RPG game and thousands of attendees were checking it out. Another is Halo 5. There was a waiting line to play Halo 5 on the game floor – even for a few minutes. Halo is made by Microsoft and sources say it will be released sometime around Christmas.

One game in particular with a world wide fan base is the new Gears of War remaster coming for the Xbox. Gears of War was one of my favorite games back in high school and everyone loves it. Gears of War is made by Microsoft. Another classic game that I played as I was a kid was Doom. This is a first-person shooter made by Bethesda. Doom is always a main attraction at video conventions and this year was no exception.

A BIG ONE. The “Mafia 3” teaser trailer made its grand appearance at E3. Such an excellent way for us Mafia lovers to get our enthusiasm up and going for what’s coming up. Xbox One, and PC releases this in March 2016.

