In the beginning...

Allterrain Electric started as a dream for young electrician Tom Miller several years ago. After graduating from Drummond High School and Autry Technology Center, Tom began his career in the electrical trade in the Enid area, working under some of the community's most respected electricians.

In 2009, Tom became a licensed unlimited journeyman and a licensed unlimited electrical contractor in 2012. He officially opened Allterrain Electric for business in February 2014.

Tom's priorities for Allterrain Electric are quality workmanship in a timely manner at a fair cost. We value our employees, customers and community. Tom operates with an "always do what's right" mentality, and wants nothing more than to provide quality service and a working environment that cultivates growth and happiness for his employees.
