Louis McNeil

Joined the Atlanta Federal Reserve in January, 2016. He has 20 years of business, information technology and security governance, risk and compliance experience with domestic and international companies. Since 2005, he has worked as an external IT auditor with Ernst & Young, an internal IT auditor with various fortune 500 companies, and as an independent Payment Card Industry (PCI) security consultant. Prior to transitioning to IT Audit in 2005, he held various traditional IT roles in corporate and startup environments. He is a veteran of the Persian Gulf War, where he served in the United States Marine Corps (USMC) as a counterintelligence professional. He holds a Bachelor's degree in Business Operations Management, a MBA with a concentration in Management of Information Systems, and various certifications including a Certified Information Systems Auditor (CISA), Certified Information Systems Security Professional (CISSP), Certified Chief Information Security Officer (C/CISO), and several as a PCI subject matter expert.