Patients experiencing a stroke, cardiovascular event or undergoing TAVR require initiation of antiplatelet therapy. Recently published literature may challenge current guideline recommendations for the use of antiplatelet agents following ischemic stroke, acute coronary syndrome and TAVR.

Learning objectives: Upon completion of this activity participants should be able to:

- Discuss updates in literature for the management of antiplatelet therapy post ischemic stroke
- Compare current guidelines for antiplatelet therapy after acute coronary syndrome to recommendations from recent literature
- Describe the use of antiplatelet therapy following TAVR and the role of cardiac co-morbidities in selecting an antiplatelet regime

Target audience:

- This activity is designed for the interdisciplinary audience including physicians, nursing, pharmacy, & PA
