Forward Air moved from their old location at the Greeneville/Greene County Municipal Airport to the old Magnavox building, which was renovated to have a modern, stylish look.

Rodney Bell, the retiring CFO of Forward Air, Mayor WT Daniels, Mayor David Crum, Representative David Hawk, Senator Steve Southerland, Scott Niswonger and Commissioner of the Tennessee Economic and Community Development Department Randy Boyd attended the ceremony.

Bell explained that Forward Air was running out of room at their location at the airport, and they began to look for a new building. The State of Tennessee and TVA are giving Forward Air grants to continue their work in this state.

Greene County Mayor David Crum said that he feels like a hole in the community has been filled with Forward Air moving into the Magnavox building and cars filling up the parking lot again.

Representative Hawk stated that Tennessee wants to be that hand to help retain businesses in the state.

Commissioner Boyd let everyone know that Tennessee received the honor of being the best state in which to locate a business two years in a row.
