

Brown, J. Grant

J. Grant Brown, 86, of Cass City died unexpectedly Sunday, June 30, 2002 in Lapeer General Hospital. He was born January 8, 1916 at home in Cumber. He was a lifelong area resident. He married Alison Gracie Milligan on August 22, 1942 in Cass City. She preceded him in death on October 16, 1986. Grant worked for Douglas Funeral Home during high school and a few years after. He was a dairy farmer until 1963 when he sold the cows. Afterward he became a crop farmer with his son Jim. Grant was a member of the Cass City First Presbyterian Church and the Farm Bureau. He has wintered in Bradenton for nearly 30 years. Grant loved his work, playing cards, traveling, and especially spending time with family and friends. Grant is survived by his children: Shirley McIntosh and her husband, Carl, of Williamston, and James Brown and his wife, Judy, of Cass City; five grandchildren, Brent McIntosh and his wife, Laura, of New York City, NY, Beth Eiler and her husband, Christian, of Royal Oak, Michelle Hill and her husband, Marc, of Pigeon, Lori Brown of Cass City, Eric Brown of Cass City; special friend Margaret Burns of Cass City; sister-in-law, Agnes Milligan of Bad Axe; one niece, two nephews and their spouses. Funeral services will be at 11a.m. Thursday, July 4, 2002, at Cass City First Presbyterian Church with the Rev. David Blackburn of Cass City First Presbyterian Church and the Rev. Michael Black of West Locke Wesleyan Church of Williamston officiating. Interment is in Elkland Township Cemetery, Cass City. Visitation is 7 to 9 p.m. today and 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at Kranz Funeral Home, Cass City. Memorials may be made to Cass City First Presbyterian Church or the American Cancer Society.