As workers try to navigate the new requirements the COVID-19 pandemic has placed on communities, limited child-care options and changing school closures present a parallel crisis. Working parents and their employers now find themselves in an ever-changing work and care landscape that can be increasingly tricky to navigate. Employers who are urgently addressing the care needs of their employees during this emergency, especially of those in lower income settings, can achieve business sustainability, productivity, and profitability in the long run.

Attendees will learn about:

- Child Care Referrals for Employees
- On-Site Presentations
- Child Care Assistance for Working Families
- And Other Resources.

About the Presenters:

Julie Champion Executive Director, Child & Family Resources, Inc.

Renee Scholz Family & Employer Services Director, Child Care Council, Inc.

Kay M. Jennings Head Social Welfare Examiner, Ontario County Department of Social Services
