Compiled by Langhorne Council for the Arts

The Arts are Alive in Lower Bucks!

The past ten years have seen an explosion of color and design all over small towns in Lower Bucks County. Murals have sprung up in Langhorne, Bristol, Morrisville, Yardley, and Fall Township. This public art delights, educates, and inspires the viewers, and instills identity and pride in the communities.

Langhorne Council for the Arts applauds the artists and sponsors of these creative works of art. LCA compiled this tour guide to bring these murals to a wider audience. This is not a sequential, point-by-point guide, given that the murals cover a wide geographic area. Instead, you are encouraged to pick a town to explore and then, on the same day or perhaps another, travel to another town to see the murals there, using your GPS to get you there. Along the way, you will also see natural beauty, historic landmarks, colonial and Victorian architecture, great restaurants, prosperous shops and services, and the best of small-town living.

LCA thanks Liz Young of Experience Yardley, Bill Pezza of Bristol's Raising the Bar, Barbara Simmons of The Peace Center and L.O.V.E., and artists Jean-Marc Dubus and Tony Napoli, for providing information for this guide, and for filling Lower Bucks with these beautiful murals!

In and Around Langhorne

The Langhorne Mural Tour begins at the intersection of Maple and Bellevue Avenues in Langhorne Borough. Turn onto S. Bellevue to the parking lot behind the Hicks House (aka Langhorne Coffee House) on your left.

Designed and painted by Langhorne mural artist Jean-Marc Dubus, this large mural is on the parking lot side of the Hicks House where Edward Hicks was born. It features a replica of the window on the Bellevue Avenue side of the building with the portrait of Edward Hicks that was painted by his cousin. The sign reflects Hicks' occupation as a sign and carriage painter, a trade he learned in a carriage shop once located behind the Langhorne Hotel. The lion, as a work in progress, is emblematic of the many versions of the painting Hicks is most famous for: "The Peaceable Kingdom."

Commissioned: Langhorne Council for the Arts

Park your car in the lot or on the street, as two other murals are within easy walking distance.

Langhorne Coffee House is a great place to enjoy breakfast, lunch, or pastry treats.

Langhorne & the American Revolution

In and Around Langhorne

Walk back to the intersection of Maple and Bellevue Avenues and cross the street to arrive at the historic Langhorne Hotel and Restaurant.

This mural is on the utility box in front of the Langhorne Hotel. It features Edward Hicks' painting of "Washington at the Delaware."

Five buildings in the area are listed on the side of the box. All had been used as hospitals for soldiers injured at the Battles of Trenton and Princeton. This reminds all who pass by of Langhorne's connection to the American Revolution. A whimsical scene on the back of the box, painted by muralist Jean-Marc Dubus, is a toast to Langhorne Hotel's most famous bartender.

Commissioned by Langhorne Council for the Arts

Lunch, dinner, or a drink at the bar at this tavern, which dates back to 1704, is always recommended!

Note: Not a mural, but it's worth a short 2-block walk or drive back up S. Bellevue Avenue to see the Revolutionary War Burial Site, just past Flowers Avenue, where more than 160 soldiers from the Battles of Trenton and Princeton are buried. On the National Register of Historic Places, interpretative signs provide more details about this site.

In and Around Langhorne

Walk back toward Maple Avenue one block, and cross Bellevue Avenue at W. Richardson Avenue.

Turn into the second driveway on your right (at the American Legion Post) to view the Langhorne Women's Mural, which is on the back of the Will Travel Building.

See the next slide for the image and description.

In and Around Langhorne

The year 2020 marked the 100th Anniversary of the passage of the 19th Amendment which guaranteed women the right to vote. This only happened because women were tenacious in their 80-year fight, battling against society's norms and facing personal sacrifice for the greater good.

In looking at the history of women from Langhorne, we realized that there are remarkable women from this area who exemplify this same kind of tenacity and accomplishment with far-reaching effects. And so, the idea of a Women's Mural was born.

Designed and painted by Langhorne artist Jean-Marc Dubus with input from members of Langhorne Council for the Arts, this mural was installed on the back of the Will Travel building and was dedicated on August 28, 2022.

Read about the women honored on this mural by scanning the QR code on the mural or visit www.LanghorneArts.org.

View the mural from the parking lot side of the Will Travel Building (118 S. Bellevue Avenue, directly across the street from the mural at the Hicks House).

In and Around Langhorne

You'll drive to the next mural by heading west on Maple Avenue.

Just past the first light, turn into the parking lot of Belmont's Garage at 633 W. Maple Avenue.

Inside the garage is a haven for those nostalgic for the 50s and 60s. Outside is a large mural painted by artist Tony Napoli, idolizing the cool cars of days gone by.

Commissioned by Andy Belmont, garage owner and former race car driver.

In and Around Langhorne

Leaving Belmont's Garage, head back into Langhorne Borough, driving east on Maple Avenue.

As you drive through the intersection of Maple Avenue (Rt 213) and Pine Street (Rt 413), look to your right at the utility box near the entrance to the Mayors Playground.

To get a good look, make a right on Cherry Street and another right on E. Richardson. There is a parking lot at the Langhorne Baptist Church which gives access to the Mayors Playground.

Walk through to the gate at the corner of Pine and Maple. Langhorne artist Jean-Marc Dubus used Edward Hicks' iconic painting, "The Peaceable Kingdom" to welcome passersby to the historic district of Langhorne Borough, birthplace of this famous primitive artist.

Greetings from Yardley Mural

From the center of Yardley, turn onto S. Main Street and then turn right onto Buttonwood Drive to the parking lot behind the building. Park and walk to see two murals: "Greetings from Yardley" and the fantasy mural at the Tot Lot.

Project Lead – Cindy Fatsis and Liz Young / Experience Yardley Mural Project

Location / Address – Buttonwood Dr at Main Street

Artist – Tony Napoli and Team

Description/Purpose – A visible entry point just steps away from the 4 cornered center of Yardley Borough at Afton and Main St.

Commissioned by Experience Yardley Funded by Local Business Sponsors and Residents

In and Around Yardley

While in Yardley, explore the shops, restaurants, and the natural beauty of Lake Afton, the Delaware Canal, and the Delaware River.

Once Upon a Time Mural

As you walk from the parking lot toward Main Street and the “Greetings from Yardley” mural, you’ll see this delightful, colorful fantasy mural on your right at the Tot Lot.

Project Lead – Yardley Borough Management Office

Artist – Tony Napoli and Team

Location / Address – Buttonwood Drive

Sponsor/Commissioner: Yardley Borough

Funding – Sandy Run Girl Scout Troop with Local Business and Residential Donations Sponsors

To design this whimsical and colorful space, artist Tony Napoli had a single design session with the Sandy Run Girl Scouts and Brownies. Drawing their ideas on paper with magic markers, pens, pencils the youngsters created their ideal tableau of a fun and fanciful world ready to greet them in the heart of Yardley’s shopping and restaurant district.

It was clear immediately that certain figures were key: magical creatures like a unicorn and a dragon as well as references to nursery rhymes and fairy tales. The central theme emerged: all were welcome to join the playground and enjoy the space as a creative oasis.

Once the design was complete the painting started and was quickly accomplished with several helpers – a bright and energizing backdrop to active play was born and is now enjoyed daily by many families.

Yardley Duck Walk Murals

These are murals of a very different sort: six murals are painted on large iconic Yardley ducks and are scattered all over town.

Project Lead – Liz Young and Cindy Fatsis / Experience Yardley Duck Walk Project

Artist/Designer – 6 Artists

Location – Various within Borough limits

Sponsor/Commissioner – Experience Yardley and Yardley Borough

Funding – Grant from PA Cultural Arts Alliance and sponsored by locale businesses and residents ($20,000)

How the idea got started – Experience Yardley Board voted to make place-making projects a priority during COVID Pandemic; Presented plans to Yardley Borough Council

Railroad Bridge Mural

As you drive south on S. Main Street, you will pass under the railroad tracks at Reading Avenue. Pull into the station parking lot and walk through the tunnel to fully appreciate the detail in this mural.

Project Lead – Jeanne Marie Eayrs / Yardley Crossing Mural Project

Artist/Designer - Jeanne Marie Eayrs and Heather Davulcu

Location - S Main St and Reading Avenue

Sponsor/Commissioner - Yardley Crossing Mural Project

Funding – self-funded and sponsored by local businesses and residents ($5000)

How the idea got started – Local residential artists got together to plan the design; requested permission from Yardley Borough Council

Truly a grassroots project led by many residents over the course of several years, the Railroad Bridge Mural greets those traveling north and south on Yardley's Main Street with the bucolic scenes from Bucks County's past and present. Central themes are the Underground Railroad and the beauty of the Delaware River and Canal that have sustained this little borough as a bustling transportation stop along the north to south.

L.O.V.E is the Answer Murals

This project has the support of the Bucks County Commissioners, the District Attorney's office, local police, government, and school personnel, and The Peace Center.

The goal of the project: bring together the police department and community members of all ages. Through the creation of a mural, we begin conversations and start to build trust, understanding, and new relationships.

Here is what L.O.V.E. is the acronym for:

L: Learn about each other

O: Open your hearts to one another

V: Volunteer to be part of the solution

E: Empower others to do the same

In Croydon

The Heritage Conservancy sponsored this mural to promote the newly opened Croydon Woods, an 80-acre preserve that is home to over 300 plants, mammals, reptiles, birds, and insects. The mural, painted and installed by Langhorne artist Jean-Marc Dubus, was a collaboration with the Truman High School art club and the local community. The art students painted the medallions that reflect some of the flora and fauna that hikers may see as they explore Croydon Woods.

This mural and the entrance to Croydon Woods are located next to and behind Keystone Elementary School, 940 Tulip Avenue, Croydon, PA.
