

Midwest Slope Challenge Fun Flying

Yes, fun flying is now an "event". There was once a time when MWSC was a small, self-contained fun contest. And despite significant growth, it's still fun! One of the reasons it's stayed that way is we keep a 50/50 balance between competitive events and open flying. So here are some guidelines that will keep it fun for all of us:

1. Frequency control is in effect at all times. Go find the frequency board, there's one somewhere

Wednesday through Sunday.

2. AMA membership is required for all participants, whether they are entered in competition or not. You have to check in or show your card to the CD to prove the point.

3. No flying off the dam at Wilson due to changes in regulations by the Kansas Department of Transportation.

4. No transmitters will be operating within 3 miles of where ever the predominant group is flying. If you're doing your own thing, go far, far away.

5. We will allocate fun flying time between "open to all" and "no-foamies". Those who treasure their breakable planes have spoken! Plus it's more fun to watch two glass planes collide instead of just one.

6. Open flying happens when the CD says it happens, not when there's an apparent lull between races.

The slope will be restricted to racing entrants before and between race events on days we run ODR,

Unlimited, and Warbird Races.
