

Instinct

A largely inheritable and unalterable tendency to make a complex and specific response to environmental stimuli without involving reason