FORCED CHANGES

As mentioned in the last newsletter, the challenges we are faced with; lack of staffing, inflation, back-orders and more have forced us to take a hard look at our future in this community. We have decided to continue to serve you, but in a limited capacity.

Starting in September,
we will be Closed on Monday's until further notice.

We value your patronage; hope you understand and are willing to work with us on the changes we needed to make.

Please stop in, watch our Website, Facebook, Google and future Newsletters to be updated on any future decisions we make, that are solely dependent on the changing times we live in.

Food Plot 101: Fall Planting for Winter Forage

The first thing you need to ask yourself is: Do you want an Annual (single season) or a Perennial (comes back yearly). Once you have made your decision, you can make your selection on what you want to plant. If you decide to go with a brassica or brassica blend (Annual), be sure to only repeat in the same area for 2 years. Brassica's take a lot of nitrogen and need a pH level above 6.3 (typical fertilizer for a brassica, without a soil test, in sandy soil in 10-10-10; in heavy soil 17-17-17). If you've planted brassicas for 2 years, you may want to switch to a legume like Soybeans or Austrian Winter Peas (annuals) or if you just want to give the soil a chance to replenish itself over the next 2-3 years, plant a clover; also, a legume. The legumes create nitrogen and are a great crop rotation choice after growing brassicas. Other good fall plantings are Winter Rye and Winter Wheat (Annuals).

Top Picks for Fall planting:

ANNUAL	PERENNIAL
Hohl's Fall Mix	Hohl's Wildlife Mix
Brassicas: Beets, Radishes or Turnips	White Clovers: Alsike, Ladino or White Dutch
Grains: Winter Rye or Wheat	Red Clovers: Duration, Mammoth or Medium
Austrian Winter Peas	Clover Based Forage Mix
