TIPS FOR HOMEBUYERS

Whether you're a first-time homebuyer or a veteran homeowner downsizing or trading up, these valuable tips can help streamline your real estate transaction by making it go quicker and smoother, with the help of MSRE Home Inspection Services, LLC (216) 403-4511.

1. Use a buyer's real estate agent. The buyer's agent has a fiduciary duty to their client and works only for you – the homebuyer – even if they are paid by the broker who listed the home for the seller.
2. Help your agent. Give your real estate agent as much information as possible. Your agent isn't a mind reader. Tell your agent what type of home you're looking for, where you want to live and how much you want to spend. Be honest with your agent.
3. Go home-shopping during the holidays. Home sellers who list their home for sale just before the holidays are likely desperate to sell. There are also fewer homebuyers to compete with during the holidays. If you want a good deal, looking for a home during the holidays may be the best way to find one.
4. Test-drive your commute to and from work during peak traffic hours. Is the home you want as close to your workplace time-wise as you thought it was? Part of the real cost of a home is the cost of traveling to and from work.
5. Visit the home in the rain. Even if you can't get permission to enter the home on short notice, observe the exterior. Are the gutters and downspouts diverting water away from the home? What does the grading look like? Does the driveway slope away from the garage?
6. Walk the neighborhood. Don't just drive around in your car. Get out and walk it.
7. Don't rely solely on the seller's disclosure. Sellers are under no obligation to disclose problems they don't know about. And for that reason, many sellers don't want to know what is wrong with their house. Hire MSRE Home Inspection Services to verify what the seller claims in the seller's disclosure.
8. Ask your seller about any disturbing noises or foul odors. Is there a business nearby that creates emissions? Is the home under an airport route? Are there train tracks nearby? How about horse stalls or commercial agriculture? Talk to neighbors to find out. Visit the home in the middle of a business day. If possible, also park outside the home at night with your car windows rolled down to find out how busy or noisy the area is during the time when it should be most peaceful.
9. Ask to see utility bills. If you're moving into a larger home, expect your utility bills to be higher. MSRE Home Inspection Services help you learn about ways to lower your energy costs and minimize water usage.

10. Make sure the inspection addendum in your purchase agreement gives you the ability to back out of the deal if your inspector finds something horribly wrong. It should require that your full deposit be returned to you if you decide not to buy the home because of something revealed in the inspection report.

11. Remember that everything is negotiable. Don't be afraid to ask for anything when you make an offer on a home. Perhaps you want a certain closing date. Ask for that. Perhaps you want certain repairs made. Ask for them. Perhaps you want help with the closing costs. Ask for it. Perhaps you want the seller to leave the drapes or the couch. Ask for them to be left with the home. Don't be shy. Buying a home is a business deal and negotiating is a normal part of any business deal. And, of course, never assume that any personal property (such as appliances, curtain rods, swing sets, the dog house, etc.) will be left behind if you haven't agreed in writing that they're included as part of the sale.

Pay a little extra for MSRE Home Inspection Services, A Certified Master Inspector®.

Buying a home is probably the most expensive purchase you'll ever make. This is no time to shop for a cheap inspection. The cost of a home inspection is very small relative to the value of the home being inspected. The additional cost of hiring MSRE Home Inspection Services (216) 403-4511 is almost insignificant by comparison. You've been recently crunching the numbers – shopping for a mortgage, adding up closing costs and negotiating offers – and trying to get the best deals. Don't stop now. Don't let your real estate agent, a "patty-cake" inspector or anyone else talk you into skimping on the home inspection. MSRE Home Inspection Services performs the best inspections by far. MSRE Home Inspection Services earn our fees many times over. As the most qualified inspector, I do more, I deserve more and – yes – I generally charge a little more. Do yourself a favor and pay a little more for the quality inspection you deserve so that you can make a confident decision with peace of mind.

12. Have the home you're interested in buying tested for radon. Radon gas is the second leading cause of lung cancer deaths after smoking. MSRE Home Inspection Services offers radon testing services.

13. Remember that no home is perfect, not even a new one. Don't make the mistake of not getting a home inspection on a newly-constructed home. Houses aren't created like new cars on an assembly line. Each home is hand-built by a variety of different tradesmen. If you're buying a new home, get it inspected by MSRE Home Inspection Services.

14. Buying a home can be a stressful process, but your home inspection doesn't have to be. Your inspection and report, combined with the seller's disclosure and what you notice yourself can make the experience overwhelming. Chances are that most of your inspection will be related to maintenance recommendations and minor imperfections. These are good to know about.

The issues that really matter will fall into four categories:

- a. Major defects, such as structural failure;
- b. Conditions that can lead to major defects, such as roof leaks;
- c. Issues that may hinder your ability to finance, legally occupy or insure the home if not rectified immediately; and

- d. Safety hazards, such as exposed, live buss bar at the electric panel.

Anything in these categories should be addresses as soon as possible. But it's important to realize that a seller is under no obligation to repair everything mentioned in your report. Most sellers are honest and are often surprised to learn of defects uncovered during an inspection. It's also inappropriate to demand that the seller address deferred maintenance, conditions already listed in the seller's disclosure or nitpicky items. Focus on the possibilities, not the problems. Keep things in perspective, and remember that no home is perfect.

15. Are you selling your home? If so, have it Move-In Certified by MSRE Home Inspection Services. Here are some advantages of having your home-for-sale inspected before you even list it:
 - a. Have MSRE Home Inspection Services inspect your home first, which may prompt the buyer to waive their own inspection contingency. Even if the buyer doesn't, a Seller's Inspection means you won't be in for any surprises.
 - b. You can schedule your inspection at your own convenience, rather than accommodate a buyer and their inspector.
 - c. You can assist your inspector during the inspection, which is something not normally done during a buyer's inspection.
 - d. A Move-In Certified Seller Inspection can alert you to any immediate concerns, such as broken pressure-relief valve or an active termite infestation.
 - e. You can take the time you need to shop around for competitive bids from contractors who can make any repairs necessary, rather than feeling forced to make a rushed decision to get things fixed in a hurry.
 - f. You can attach repair estimates or paid invoices to your inspection report. This also means removing over-inflated buyer-procured repair estimates from the negotiating table.
 - g. Attract potential buyers touring homes in your neighborhood by having Move-In Certified yard signs in front of your house. They're free from MSRE Home Inspection Services.
 - h. A Move-In Certified Seller's Inspection is the ultimate gesture in forthrightness on your part.
 - i. You're given the opportunity to dispute any misstatements in the inspection report before it's distributed to real estate agents and prospective buyers.
 - j. The report provides an unbiased, third party, professional opinion about the condition of the home.
 - k. The report may encourage the buyer to waive their own inspection contingency, so the deal is less likely to fall apart, the way they often do, when a buyer's inspection reveals unexpected problems at the last minute.
 - l. The report can be hosted on www.FetchReport.com, which can be used as an effective on-line marketing tool.
 - m. The report can help you realistically price the home if problems exist.
 - n. The report can help substantiate a higher asking price if problems don't exist or have been corrected.
 - o. The report may relieve a prospective buyer's unfounded suspicions and concerns before they walk away from an otherwise great deal.
 - p. The report provides full-disclosure protection from future legal claims.
