

Abdi Jama., MD, FACC, RPVI

Dr. Jama is a board certified Cardiovascular and Internal Medicine physician specializing in Cardiology, Interventional Cardiology, Vascular Medicine and Intervention. Dr. Jama obtained his bachelor's degree in Biochemistry from the University of Minnesota and Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of Kansas. He completed Internal Medicine residency, general Cardiology fellowship and Interventional Cardiology fellowship at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester MN. Additionally, he completed advanced Vascular Medicine and Intervention fellowship at Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard Medical School in Boston, MA.

Dr. Jama is a member of the University of Minnesota Physicians and practices Cardiology and Vascular Medicine in the twin cities.

Dr. Jama has performed research in Cardiology and Vascular Medicine and published in peer-reviewed journals. Dr. Jama has presented at numerous national and international meetings. Dr. Jama's has several research interests in his field of Cardiology. He is also interested in understanding prevalence of cardiovascular risk factors among Minnesota's minority and immigrant communities with a view of establishing early prevention mechanisms for cardiovascular disease.

Dr. Jama's academic publications

<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/?term=Abdi+Jama>