

Expanding Jaeva Management moves to new headquarters

Buoyant consultancy business, Jaeva Management, has relocated its head office to larger premises with another site due to open later this year.

Following excellent performance in the last year, specialist consultancy to the legal profession, Jaeva Management Services Limited, has moved to new, larger headquarters in Cleator Moor's Phoenix Enterprise Centre in Cumbria.

As part of continued ambitious expansion plans, Jaeva is set to open a second office for its growing team of consultants later in the year.

Jaeva's Managing Director, Nicola Moore-Miller, attributes its financial success in 2015/2016 to "unprecedented demand for our bespoke services by law firms embarking upon complex and diverse legal practice and case management projects as well as business process reviews."

"Being a niche sector, legal practices prefer to instruct consultancy support from companies with expertise in the industry", continues Nicola. "Because we work exclusively with legal service providers, we're seeing higher volumes of requests for our consultancy services. To cater for our increased workload, we've recruited more consultants and this bigger office space is needed to accommodate these new team members."

"It's also a hub for our administration and management team, and acts as a hot-desking site for visiting consultants located elsewhere plus it's a meeting place for clients," concludes Nicola.

Jaeva joins the 30 other businesses employing some 240 people already housed in the 40,000 sq ft Phoenix Enterprise Centre building. As well as offering an enlarged floor plan for Jaeva's workforce, the office is situated conveniently closer to the region's thriving business centres.

Now that its new North West head office is fully operational, Jaeva's embarking upon the next phase of expansion by establishing a satellite office further afield, full details of which will be released in due course.
