To whom it may concern,

Our grandson was diagnosed with severe dyslexia and ADD. We first noticed his problem when he was in the first grade. He was unable to recognize words, spell, and read. At best, he could memorize words for a short period of time but was never able to remember or recognize them within a few days and could not understand their meaning in context. He was unable to concentrate while trying to do homework and would get very frustrated.

After his diagnosis, a friend recommended we supplement tutoring with treatment from Dr. Fong. Dr. Fong's office treatments were twice weekly eye exercises. Honestly, we are not sure how the exercises work but the improvement cannot be characterized as anything less than remarkable. First, and very importantly, Dr. Fong established a great rapport with our grandson. He was always happy to come to the office and do the work with the Dr. Besides that we saw very rapid improvement in his ability to concentrate and quickly his word comprehension improved. His attitude become more mature, his vocabulary improved and, very importantly, his self-esteem and confidence improved as well.

We do not know how well this works for all children, but we know this treatment worked very well for our grandson and would encourage anyone with a child suffering from this disorder to consider having Dr. Fong see if he can help. He has helped us more than we had thought possible.
