Rabbit Counts From One to Ten in New Children's Book

Long Valley resident and teacher, Rebecca Kwiatkoski, combines her love for teaching and animals in her latest children's book, Paisley, You're Crazy! The Old Farmers Road School third-grade teacher has had two other children's books published, Harley & Heloise and Moose Is Loose! Drawing inspiration from her own pets, Harley is based on the rescue of her Rottweiler mix, Harley, and Moose spotlights her run-away guinea pig. Kwiatkoski is now thrilled to present her new title, Paisley, You're Crazy! a counting book for early readers featuring her Lop rabbit, Paisley.

In the story, the author captivates young readers with beautiful photography of her star, Paisley, as well as engages them through poetic, numerical rhymes. Young children will not only enjoy counting with Paisley from one to ten but also have fun finding Paisley's missing pet items throughout the borders of the book.

Kwiatkoski's idea to teach basic identification of numbers with their matching words is presented in such a way that it captures a child's interest and is easily seen throughout the brightly-colored 24 page picture book.

The charming photographs in Paisley were taken by Kathryn Higgins. A photographer who enjoys photographing children, families, pets and nature, Higgins lives in Long Valley with her husband and two daughters along with their dog, horse and two cats! The colorful design in Paisley, You're Crazy was created by graphic artist Jeanne Balsam of Milford. Aside from providing the layout and design, Balsam also contributed numerous line drawings. Balsam's lifelong love of animals shines through in all her design projects as well as in her writing and illustrating. To learn more about her work visit: www.jeannebalsam.com
