(food for thought) (Bulletin 10 October, 2021)
 Gospel: Mk 10: 17-30 “Agenda v. Commitment”

There is a basic difference between taking an initiative and responding to a call. In the first instance, the movement starts from within: an individual is the initiator. In the second case, it starts outside the individual: another person is the initiator. Throughout the Gospels, we see many instances when Jesus initiates the call to discipleship; but we also see that sometimes those who take initiatives do not always become disciples.

Jesus is never one to ask the impossible, only the unlikely and unimagined. His instructions are intended to create connection, collaboration, and community. His "go" will be followed by a "come, follow me!" In this way, the man's initiative will have been transformed into a covenant or bond between the master and the disciple. But that command will also require the man to engage in some very radical and public behavior, and not just private piety or spirituality. "At that saying", Mark tells us, the man's face fell and he went away as quickly as he had come. In good faith, he had sought a reasonable answer to a reasonable, but complex, question. But he had not received an answer - at least, not a simple, reasonable answer.

Each of us shall have to take this gospel to heart. We need to examine our own perspectives and strip away our illusions. Discipleship requires new kinds of relationships, new kinds of community. Rugged individualism is simply not adequate. What God wants to give cannot be purchased or earned.
