12 Time Grammy Winner CeCe Winans Releases A Treasure Trove of Christmas Songs | AVAILBLE TODAY!

Los Angeles, CA – (October 19, 2018) The calendar shows Autumn is in full swing, but Christmas is in the air and award-winning singer CeCe Winans gears up for her fourth holiday recording, Something's Happening! A Christmas Album (Puresprings Gospel/ Thirty Tigers). The 11 track musical delight features Christmas classics and new songs perfect for holiday gatherings and trimming the tree. The contemporary collection of compositions is available at iTunes, Amazon, Apple Music, Spotify, Pandora, Barnes & Noble and other music retail outlets.

Once again, Winans teams up with her son Alvin Love III, a Grammy winning producer, to deliver a smorgasbord of festive songs that will have listeners coming back for more each year. Something's Happening! A Christmas Album will no doubt be added to consumer's holiday stash of favorites.

Alvin penned five new songs for this spirit-filled Christmas album, incorporating five classic tunes with a distinctive musical twist. He went the extra mile and invited the Zagreb Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Tim Akers and recorded Vatroslav Lisinski Concert Hall in Zagreb, Croatia.

"We were inspired by the Christmas albums from the golden era of symphonic popular music. This album is grand in scale and spectrum. Each song is accompanied by a 75 piece orchestra and brings out a different color in CeCe's voice, some colors will be familiar some will be new. It's a big sound and we're really proud of it", says Alvin.

The melodious sound of "This World Will Never Be the Same" reminds listeners how much the world has changed, but gives us hope for a better tomorrow. The whimsical, "Giving Season" paints a vivid picture of Christmastime and the spirit of giving while the classic, "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing" delivers familiarity in the beginning, but midway through the song the tempo changes to flavorful and rhythmic percussions. In a festive contemporary seasonal carol, "It's Christmas," Alvin Love's crafted tune will have you swaying and singing along.

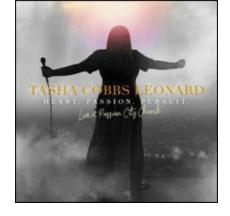

Earlier this week Billboard Magazine premiered the single, "It's Christmas" noting its' upbeat, Motown-flavor that apparently had some musical influence on the Detroit born singer. This is Winans' first solo Christmas album since the release of His Gift in 1998.

Winans is open to branching out musically and has this to say about the new album, "It's been a long time. I just felt like I could do something that was better, something that was fresher. It was time to do a new one, and I'm pretty pleased with it. I think it's fresh, and fun. I'm glad I did it."

The vocals are masterful on this album and Winans doesn't fail to seal her signature sound into each song. From start to finish this album brightens the smile and lightens the heart, reminding us of the true meaning of season. Something's Happening! A Christmas Album will make the perfect Christmas gift and stocking stuffer.

Songbook is conducting an Initial Partnership Offering to secure funding toward completion of the world's first Interactive/Omni-Directional/Eco-Streaming platform to facilitate the Indie Music Industry. "We've coupled our SoMe/So-Com hybrid platform with our own Omni-Directional/Eco-streaming algorithm. We believe we've rendered every music-streaming-only platform obsolete. We can now create and customize entire music ecosystems! We want to show investors how we've done it."

Songbook speaks 'Musician', we share the same digital DNA! Indies can fuel their passion and build their success on our platform. More money to streaming artists; the conduit for writers and musicians to meet, share and collaborate; 'real-time' opportunities to perform within their markets. Songwriters will interface with music publishers to audition their music 'on demand' in a whole new way.

Its Software-as-a-Service (SaaS) design performs 'on-demand' to deliver fulfillment from Musicians and Songwriters throughout their markets by curating 'real-time' supply-and-demand analytics for local/global music ecosystems.

Bishop Jakes Captures Historic Mother-to-Mother Moment: Sybrina Fulton Honors Allison Jean At International Gathering

DALLAS, Oct. 18, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Trayvon Martin's mother, Sybrina Fulton, presented the Lady of Grace award to Allison Jean, mother of Botham Jean, last night during the God's Leading Ladies gala at Bishop T.D. Jakes' Woman, Thou Art Loosed! Master Class conference. The award recognizes Jean's grace, courageous faith, strength and resilience as she rose up to advocate not only for her son, but for others who have unjustly lost their lives.

The historic moment captured the two women who are inextricably linked by the tragic and unexpected loss of their sons through racially motivated violence: one to an overzealous neighbor and the other to an off-duty police officer. Fulton has become an advocate and consoler to other families who have lost loved ones due to violence.

Jakes, senior pastor of The Potter's House, has worked to keep public attention on the issue of racially unjust violence:

"This is a 200-year-old problem that we are still facing within contemporary society. Today too many families have become victims to senseless tragedies. Now is the time to unite and not divide. We need leaders of all colors to come together and recognize we have a problem across America. My hope and prayer is that together as a community we can work together to educate society and change this disturbing pattern. Regardless of race and background, every mother should feel that her children are safe."

The 2018 Woman, Thou Art Loosed! Master Class runs until Oct. 20 at The Potter's House in Dallas. For more than 25 years, it has been training, teaching and inspiring more than half a million women. This year's new Master Class format will feature breakout panels on topics such as the challenges female leaders face in male-dominated work environments, how to achieve work-life balance, how to succeed in corporate America and tips to maintain healthy relationships. HI-TAPO instantly documents user interactions with law enforcement via streaming video, social sharing, and text and e-mail notifications to a pre-programmed network of up to 10 family members, friends, loved ones and civic and community organizations.

"Additionally, HI-TAPO can provide a mechanism for collaborative, fair and equitable oversight of local police, state troopers, sheriffs, ICE agents, and others. It can be used as a new tool in community policing. With HI-TAPO, communities can actually map police stops," said HI-TAPO CEO and app developer Martin Whitehead.

The HI-TAPO app is available for free download to Android mobile phones through Google Play. HI-TAPO is user-friendly with an easy swipe-and-click activation, and starting in November, audio activation.

Once the HI-TAPO app is activated, live streaming of audio and video immediately begin to record the user's interaction and GPS tracking pinpoints the location. Alerts are sent to those in the user's network allowing them to listen to and view the interaction in real time. If necessary, the audio/video can be used in a court of law.

After activating HI-TAPO, the user can hit an "all-clear" button once the interaction has concluded. However, if there is no all—clear signal given after a pre-determined amount of time, an SOS alert will automatically be sent to his/her network.

In addition, following the stop, HI-TAPO allows users to write a review of the interaction, including the officer's name, badge number, the reason for the stop, use of force, if any, and a rating of the overall experience with a thumb's up or down.

The HI-TAPO system will aggregate ratings and comments about interactions with law enforcement providing greater transparency, information sharing, an opportunity for community-building, as well as a vehicle for highlighting well-trained officers who engage the community in a fair and equitable way. Campaign Features WE tv Talent Encouraging Viewers to Vote on November 6

(Black PR Wire) BALTIMORE -- NAACP, the nation's foremost civil rights organization, today announced a partnership with WE tv, the #1 cable network for African-American viewers on Thursday nights, that encourages the channel's viewers to make their voices heard by voting on November 6. The non-partisan effort features WE tv talent delivering the "get out the vote" message that underscores the importance of participating in the democratic process and emphasizes that together with the NAACP, WE make a difference.

The national spots, which began airing on the network's social and linear channels on Thursday, October 4, feature WE to celebrities such as Romeo Miller, Angela Simmons, Trina Braxton, Towanda Braxton, Bossip's Tyler Chronicles and more. The campaign imagery highlights the talent speaking out alongside the message, "it's hard to make a difference – if you don't use your voice," and finishes with the message that "when we vote – we decide who speaks for us, and it's never been more important to be heard." Viewers are directed to naacp.org for more information. In addition to WE to platforms, the NAACP will also distribute the campaign via its Twitter, Instagram, and Facebook accounts, and naacp.org/vote will serve as a hub for resources and information regarding voting.

"The NAACP has always been a leader in the struggle to improve the lives of black people in America and we are excited to join WE tv in this partnership to engage their viewers to make their voices heard in November," said NAACP President Derrick Johnson. "There is too much at stake for this election. The decisions that we make now will have a five-year effect that will possibly change the entire face of our Congress. We each have the power, not just vote, but also to empower others to make our voices heard at the ballot box. We must vote in far greater numbers because our lives, our very existence depends on it."

"We are proud to work with our partners at the NAACP on a spectrum of activities, all designed to encourage our influential African-American audience to vote in the upcoming mid-term elections," said WE tv President Marc Juris. "Our Thursday night viewers are highly engaged with our brand across multiple platforms, creating a perfect opportunity to deliver a powerful and targeted 'get out and vote' message. The right to cast a ballot is more important than ever before and WE, along with the NAACP, really can make a difference."

Original Stage Play Based on Bestselling Novel Returns to Stage

NEW ORLEANS (PRWEB) October 19, 2018 --When Dr. Rhonda Lawson produced her first stage play, Cheatin' in the Next Room, for one night only back in February, she only hoped for a great turnout and positive reviews. However, she never anticipated the demand she received to bring back the production.

Heeding the demand, the Meet the World Image Solutions founder has revived the play, based on her 2004 bestselling novel of the same name, and is taking it to Slidell's Cutting Edge Theater Nov. 9-11.

"It was so exciting to know that people were still talking about the stage play after all these months," said Lawson, publicist and five-time novelist. "New Orleans gave me so much love when I first published Cheatin' in the Next Room fourteen years ago, and it's amazing to see that the play is getting that same appreciation."

Cheatin' in the Next Room, tells the story of how an affair can affect more those who committed it. Although infidelity storylines are familiar in literature, Lawson explained that this story is about much more.

"This book takes a deeper look at the far-reaching effects of infidelity, such as damaged friendships, fragmented trust, misplaced blame, and self worth," she said. "It is an emotional and dramatic story, but there are also some very funny moments."

Much of the original cast has returned to the production, but with a few changes. This time around, the play will be directed by New Orleans actor and rapper Teddo November, who played Henry in the original production. Also new to the cast will be noted New Orleans actor Tre Lopez as Christopher, and newcomer Eryn Brown, who will play the tempting Alexis. Returning will be New Orleans actress Jeanette Scott as Brenda, actress and model Amber Ned and Aunt Mary, actor Willie Lee as Darnell, actor Demetrius Bradley as the wise-cracking Byron, and Mrs. Louisiana Universal 2019 Clairica Lange, as Christopher's wife Andrea.

"To have so much of our original cast return to the production is a true honor," Lawson said. "Each of these actors have brought a new energy to the performance, so much so that even if you saw the play in February, it will be like watching an entirely different production."

Tickets are on sale now, and can be purchased on Eventbrite or at the Cutting Edge Theater. Each person who purchases a ticket will also receive a free Kindle version of the original novel.

"Reading or sending a text while driving isn't worth risking your life and the lives of those around you," said Lisa Sherman, president and CEO of the Ad Council. "By helping drivers curb this habit, we will save nearly 10 lives from being lost to distracted driving each day."

Ad Council research shows that more than nine in ten Americans believe sending (94%) and reading (91%) texts while driving is dangerous or very dangerous. However, while people know that the behavior is dangerous, many still text and drive regularly.

To address the disconnect between awareness and behavior, the new creative assets, created pro bono by Pereira O'Dell, humorously depict the daily life of one man who just can't put his phone down. He stumbles through life with his eyes glued to his screen – making blunders along the way – until he gets behind the wheel and responsibly puts his phone aside. This winking creative approach acknowledges the powerful need many people feel to always keep an eye on their phone and concludes with a reminder to "text and whatever, just don't text and drive."

"We wanted to demonstrate levity alongside a very serious situation that whether or not you love to be on your phone, the road is no place for that," said Jason Apaliski, Executive Creative Director at Pereira O'Dell.

The new creative work includes TV, radio and social media assets. Per the Ad Council's model, the new PSAs will be distributed to media outlets nationwide and run in donated media time and space. To date, the "Stop the Texts. Stop the Wrecks" campaign has received approximately $225 million in donated media value.
