

Time vs. Timing

The ancient Greeks
called time
CHRONOS,
but for them
timing was KAIROS.

Time is
measurement;
timing is
opportunity.
Time flows like
a river;
timing takes the plunge.

We spend time,
but save our timing;
We pass time,
but prepare our timing.
We go through time,
but anticipate our timing.

Time goes on
without you,
but timing is all
up to you.
Time goes by
unnoticed,
but timing needs
your attention.

If you act when
the time is right,
that's timing .

But if you take your time,
you may lose
your timing.
And if you miss
your timing,
you're wasting
your time!
