

News from the Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin

For Immediate Release

Media Contact:

Bari Rieth
(262) 232-8887

bari@bircofwi.org

Mark Schmitt's Creativ/Edge Studio

Discover your creative side here

Waukesha, WI (10/2/2017) – The Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc. is located just outside downtown Waukesha at 511 N. Grand Ave, come inside and take a look at the Studio!

Mark Schmitt's Creativ/Edge Studio is located in the Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc. and this space has been made possible by the generosity of the Schmitt Family. Come discover your true Creativ/Edge in this studio!

M. Schmitt and his wife, Aimee Schmitt, became involved with the Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc. after M. Schmitt was diagnosed with Moya Moya disease. According to the Mayo Clinic, Moyamoya disease is a rare blood vessel disorder where a ring of blood vessels at the base of your brain and the uppermost segments of the arteries supplying the brain progressively narrow, causing blood flow to your brain to become reduced (Mayo Clinic Staff, 01/2017)

More about M. Schmitt's story can be found in Volume 6 Issue 4, which can be found at:
<https://www.bircofwi.org/bircofwi-quarterly-bulletins.html>

This very special addition to the Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc. is dedicated to all those who have a creative side just waiting to come out. It is for those affected by ABI and TBI who enjoy working with their creative hands, digging deep inside their creative minds, and opening up their creative spirit to make something beautiful.

Mark Schmitt's Creativ/Edge Studio is open Tuesday-Thursday from 1:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m. and some select Saturday's for classes. To view the registration form and class offerings for the Mark Schmitt Creativ/Edge Studio please visit: <https://www.bircofwi.org/birc-event-rsvp-page.html>

Referance List:

Mayo Clinic Staff. (2017, June 02). Moyamoya Disease. Retrieved from <http://www.mayoclinic.org/home/ovc-20318725>

About the Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc.

The Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc. is a 501(c) 3 non-profit organization that helps survivors of brain injury and their families find answers to all of their questions and assists survivors entering the "what now" phase of their lives post brain injury.

The Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc. was co-founded by mother and daughter, Lois York-Lewis and Bari L. Rieth, who saw a need to help survivors of brain injury. Kathy Richardson makes their team complete by offering top notch resource facilitation services and she also works as an independent contractor to help brain injury survivors re-learn skills. They understood that more attention is given to a person immediately after they sustain their injury, but then the support drastically declines. This decline in attention is usually due to the inability of the brain injury survivor to find the resource they need. Their mission is to offer assistance and resources to people in Wisconsin who are living with the consequences of brain injury and this is what they have accomplished through their resource facilitation service they offer.

The Brain Injury Resource Center of Wisconsin, Inc., serves all 72 counties of Wisconsin.