

Ethics vs. Morals

Ethics and morality:
both deal with
human behavior;
but ethics gives
the prescription,
whereas morality
is the practice.

Ethics is
the recipe;
morality is
the delicacy.

Ethics is
the grammar;
morality is
the literature.

Not everyone articulates
a code of ethics,
but all of us live out
a morality.

Ethics is a branch
of philosophy;
for the believer
it is also infused
by theology.

Morality is an expression of living
that calls for loving.

The unethical
violates
a principle;
the immoral
goes against conscience

Morals
are to be guided by the wisdom
of ethics,
not the whim
of fancy.

In our individual
and corporate lives
it is not enough to
think straight;
we have to
act properly.

For,
integrity
depends on being highly ethical and deeply moral.

Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski
August 4, 2002

Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com

www.fatherwaltersparish.org