The SGIR Review is published by the Society for German Idealism and Romanticism. It includes reviews and responses written for SGIR Author-Meets-Critics Sessions at annual American Philosophical Association conferences (Eastern, Central, and Pacific) as well as stand-alone reviews of recent publications. The SGIR Review cooperates with other journals in the field such as the Kantian Review. At times, the SGIR Review provides these journals with one of its own reviews from a symposium book review series. In such cases, we note the copyright transfer in the bibliographic portion of the review and reproduce it here with the permission of Cambridge Journals.

The aim of the SGIR Review is to provide scholars in the History of Modern Philosophy with a source for in-depth discussion of scholarly works published within the last year. The SGIR Review will publish twelve critical reviews and author responses in our first volume, to be divided between two issues.
