ECONOMIC UPDATE AND ANALYSIS

ECONOMY ADDS 850k JOBS IN JUNE; JOBLESS RATE RISES TO 5.9%

Employers added more jobs than expected last month as additional states announced plans to wind down extended unemployment benefits.

Nonfarm payrolls increased by 850,000 workers in June as the unemployment rate ticked up to 5.9%, the Labor Department said Friday. May's reading was revised higher by 24,000 jobs to 583,000.

The stronger than expected report may be a sign that some of the temporary labor shortages holding back the employment recovery are starting to ease. The acceleration in employment growth was driven by sectors most closely affected by the continued return to normalcy.

Sizable job gains were seen in leisure and hospitality (+343,000), public and private education (+269,000), professional and business services (+72,000), retail trade (+67,000), and other services (+56,000). Industries including construction and healthcare saw little change.

STRATEGICALLY FOR CREDIT UNIONS

The jobs gains came as at least 26 states have ended or announced plans to end the $300 per week supplemental unemployment benefits that are scheduled to expire in September. Additionally, average hourly wages in June increased 3.6% year over year, helping lure laborers back to work.

Still, there were signs that the recovery remains slow and uneven. Average workweek shrank 0.1 hour to 34.7 hours and the labor force participation rate holding steady at 61.8%.

Material shortages and bottlenecks have plagued sectors like manufacturing as well — helping to drive up prices and complicate the recovery as consumer demand and activity rebounds. And inflation remains a concern of top policymakers in Washington, after more than a year of low interest rates and stimulus measures have helped fire up the economy.

There were 6.8 million, or 4.4%, fewer workers than in February 2020, just before the COVID-19 pandemic caused much of the economy to shut down. Friday's report was relatively positive but it comes short of clarifying whether the Federal Reserve will soon begin to taper its asset purchase program and raise rates.
