Sub: - Increase in road-rage.

Dear Sir,

I would like to draw your kind attention through your esteemed daily towards an increase in road rage caused by reckless driving to make aware the common mans in general and the police in particular.

Now-a-days road-rage i.e. occurrence of accidents daily has become like a fashion. The illiterate, uneducated drivers know little about traffic rules and rule of the road. They are often seen to drive vehicles drinking wine at an alarming speed. The young teenagers, particularly as hailtep from arosticatic family drive two wheelers at a very high-speed killing pedestrians on the road. Licence of vehicles should be given to the learners after imparting them proper training.

In view of the above, it is hoped that article on this issue will be published and at the same time the Government would take wise steps to curb this menace as early as possible.

Yours Faithfully,
Krishna.
