POUR OUT GOD'S LOVE

Jesus' words to His disciples at the beginning of today's Gospel—"I have much more to tell you, but you cannot bear it now" (John 16:12) - can be appreciated much more when we realize that they were spoken on the night before Jesus was arrested, tortured, put on trial, and condemned to death. He was right. They could not bear what they were about to witness. After all, they fled in fear as He was led away. The other evangelists portray Jesus' wish that He did not have to bear it either, along with His resolve that His Father's will be done, no matter how difficult. His trust in the One who sent Him enabled Him to bear the ultimate burden for all of us.

He did not have to bear it either, along with His resolve that His Father's will be done, no matter how difficult. His trust in the One who sent Him enabled Him to bear the ultimate burden for all of us.

That relationship between the Father and the Son that inspired such trust and confidence in the face of death is matched in their relationship with the Spirit as the love we are called to give each other according to the greatest commandment. To love God with our whole heart, mind, strength, and being, and to love our neighbor as ourselves is to mirror the love of our triune God. God is love and love naturally seeks an object of its desire. The Father, Son, and Spirit are bound in a perfect love, love that can then be extended to humanity. Our love of humanity causes us to seek others to whom we can express that selfless, generous, and forgiving love that God lavishes upon us.

Saint Paul speaks of afflictions, endurance, and character and he certainly grew in all three in his work as the preeminent apostle to the Gentiles. He knows well how these qualities lead to hope, the hope that is grounded in our faith and in God's love for us. Paul describes that love being poured out into us, as a liquid would be, suggesting that it can flow into and out of us. As much as it was flowing into Paul from God, it was flowing out of Paul to people all over the world, from Antioch to Rome, to everywhere in between, and into their hearts where it could then flow ever outward and onward. The Holy Spirit makes all us channels of God's love in the world.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

Am I conscious of God's love being poured into my heart? How can I pour it out this week to those I meet?

Blessings

Father Raphael

We wish to thank all who were part of Fr. Raphael's 25th Anniversary Celebration, those who organized this wonderful event, those who attended and those who were there in thoughts and prayers. Congratulations again to our dear Fr. Raphael!!

We take our hats off when the flag passes by—if we wear hats. We salute the flag. We put our hands over our hearts. Flags should never be flown at night unless they are lit or if they are flying over a specifically designated site. We fly the flag at half-mast as a symbol of our mourning.

We have symbols in our faith, the cross the most obvious one. The cross was so powerful a symbol that the Crucifixion didn't appear in Christian art until several centuries after Christ's death. The memory of actual crucifixions was too fresh in early Christian minds. To stare at a cross was to stare at a violent death.

The American flag is relatively recent symbol by those standards, adopted by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777. Commemoration of June 14 as Flag Day is even more recent, established by President Woodrow Wilson in 1916, 100 years ago.

Symbols by themselves mean nothing. The flag is mere fabric, the cross is a bit of wood or metal. But when we let a symbol stand for something we honor the better parts of our human nature. When we say the pledge of allegiance "to the flag," we are reminding ourselves of the values it represents. We do the same thing when we reverence the cross.

So when you see the flag today, pause for a moment. If you're wearing a hat, take it off. Put your hand over your heart. Say a prayer for "one
