Midwest Maintenance Safety Certifications

St. Paul Lutheran Church
Ft. Wayne, Indiana

Scioto Mile | Columbus, Ohio

Every Midwest Maintenance associate has received multiple safety certifications.

We have received the Gold and Silver Levels Certificate for Safety from the Associated Builders and Contractors for the past 10 years.

Restoration of any occupied structure, especially of a historic nature is not achieved without planning, teamwork and constant attention to detail. Likewise, the welfare and safety of the building's occupants, pedestrian traffic and our skilled craftsmen begin long before work commences on a project.

Our company hired an independent consultant, Road To Safety, that works specifically with all of our projects. The consultants make unannounced site inspections for infractions, conducted safety seminars for the employees as well as make suggestions to the Project Manager for future safety issues for the next focus of work. Midwest Maintenance, Inc. currently has a signed contract for this firm that expands their focus to oversee all site related safety issues for all of our projects in all the states we are licensed in.

Every two years our company brings all the employees from all states for a week long safety intervention. We bring different companies to show demonstrations for example Dayton Power and Light and American Scaffolding. Road to Safety comes in along with the Ohio Bureau of Workers Compensation to educate the employees on all aspects of Construction Safety. On the off years we have (2) day safety interventions utilizing Road to Safety and The Ohio BWC for safety education.

Our company has strong roots in sharing all the education that is out there for our employees. Each year the Ohio Bureau of Workers Compensation has the Ohio Safety Congress & Expo held in Columbus, Ohio every year. This Congress offers strategies and tools essential for a healthy productive workforce. Our company also registers for this safety informative event to benefit our organization.
