

To whom it may concern,

About three years ago my wife and I began looking for a piano instructor for our son Alex. He had taken lessons before, but in a group setting where he wasn't getting the personal attention that we felt was necessary for him to excel at the piano. We came across Paul Burd's website "The music lessons Studio" and were intrigued by his professionalism, the testimonials and competitive pricing (not to mention he was relatively close to where we live). We brought Alex in for a "try out" and he has been a student of Paul Burd for three years. We have been impressed with Paul's attention to detail with regards to proper playing technique, his patience and dedication to his students. Paul has also made it fun by recording completed pieces (providing copies on CD), playing duets with Alex and improvisation sessions. I would highly recommend Paul Burd for a parent looking for a piano teacher for their child or anyone wishing to learn to play the piano.

Thanks Paul for being a great piano teacher for Alex.

Sincerely,
