Welcome everybody!

The Viva Panamá Organization (VPO) commemorates its Silver Anniversary of sharing Panama's culture with the world. Its mission to present and preserve Panama's cultural heritage and promote global awareness of its richness continues to be the driving force.

I would like to thank all of you who have been involved with us for the last 25 years, especially those that, in one way or other, supported our Ballet Folklórico, the alpha, and omega of VPO. We have traveled with Panama's music and dance through more than 75 cities in California, three states, and three countries. Thanks to those who have trusted and believed in our work, as it has helped us be recognized by our cultural peers as "Cultural Ambassadors of Panamá in California". Our hard work and sacrifices have been fruitful over the course of these 25 years.

We are very humble and proud of establishing the International Week of Panama in the County of Los Angeles. This accomplishment was made in collaboration with the County's Board of Supervisors. I sincerely hope that this legacy continues for the cultural benefit of our present and future generations.

I feel extremely blessed when meeting Panamanians who have contributed to the benefit of our community and been an example of leadership here in the USA, Panama and the world. I am deeply appreciative of those who have been with us in the good and bad times, always working hard and striving to present the best image of Panama and at the highest quality level.

I encourage you to consider becoming a VPO member by donating your time and funds, and referring potential sponsors. Remember that all your contributions are tax-deductible and because of your support we are able to generate programs such as our Panamanian International Film Festival. This Festival exhibits productions of the new film industry in Panama and the Americas, as well as the creation of the future Panamanian Cultural Center. Show your pride in being a Panamanian by donating, supporting our projects and working with us!

Thanks to all our partners, sponsors, emcees, and artists for your support, kindness and generosity that made all our projects possible and for making this evening a beautiful reality. Thanks to Union Bank; Wells Fargo Bank; M. Collins Signature Events & Branding; Lic. Raquel Alfaro - General Consul of Panama in California; Patricia López Freer & Eduardo Blancas, Emcees; María Vergara, Gabriel Padilla, Panama Film Commission & Panamanian Ministry of Industry and Commerce; Carlos Carrasco, Rochelle Newman, Maia C. Jorge Ameer

AMBASSADOR AWARD RECIPIENT:
FILMMAKER, DIRECTOR & PRODUCER

Jorge is a Panamanian author, director, film distributor and artist who from childhood participated in theatrical pieces, which engaged him in the world of entertainment. A human rights activist, Jorge has committed to creating controversial stories challenging audiences on stereotypical social conventions that detract from enhancing the global human experience.

At 18, he was selected to participate in the Walt Disney College Program, where he worked in the Department of Marketing for New Line Cinema, and as script analyst for Gere Productions. This immersed him in production, distribution, and purchase of foreign films imported to the United States and Latin America. Following graduation from the University of Texas Tech., he worked for the CBS global audience test pilots. This led to his own script writing, plus developing scripts for Paramount and Columbia Pictures Studios' affiliates. He performed in "Panther", "Tales from the Hood", "Social Friction Fables", "Friday", and co-starred in "Sabor Tropical".

In 1997, he founded and directed the Continental Film Festival in Contadora, the first American Independent Film Festival on an island. Then he created Hollywood Independents, thereby launching distribution of films with celebrities like Mario López, Jazmine Guy, Tyrone Power Jr., and countless others. Among his productions are: "The Singing Forest", "Contadora is for Lovers", "The House of Adam", and "Tropical flavor".

He's been instrumental in the Los Angeles Latino Film Festival and Methodfest Film Festival. Other than work featured in the G & L Film Festival in Barcelona and being cinema programmer for the G & L Film Festival in Palm Springs, he pioneered production and publishing of the award-winning "Guide to Gay & Lesbian Film".

Over the last 15 years he's accomplished these remarkable feats: founded the Glitter Awards; was invited by the Library of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences Fairbanks Center for Motion Picture Study to avail his screenplays permanently in "The Core Collection"; started the "Jorge Ameer presents Independent Cinema Series"; and celebrated two premieres in the Cannes Film Festival ("Medusa" and "Find Pauletta"). He's filming the documentary "Classic Hollywood Cinemas" exploring their history. Recently, Jorge inaugurated the first Panamanian Program offering High School Degrees with emphasis in Film and Communication at the Instituto Panamericano (IPA), his alma mater in Panama.

Master Police Officer Vladimir Anderson

AMBASSADOR AWARD RECIPIENT:
GUARDIAN OF LAW & ORDER.

During seven years in the U.S. Marine Corps, he was assigned to units serving in different theaters and received military recognitions. Following military service he achieved his long life aspiration of becoming a police officer. In 26 years he has served in law enforcement with distinction and held positions as a background investigator, hostage negotiator, and in numerous other ancillary assignments. Currently, he is assigned to the Newport Beach Police Department’s Detective Division, Special Victims Unit.

He serves as President of the Newport Beach Police Association; Director of the Newport Beach Police Charitable Foundation, a non-profit organization; and the Chair of NBPA Political Action Committee. Vladimir advises the 1st Battalion/1st Marine Foundation. Additionally, he belongs to the Orange County Police and Sheriff Association, the Police Officers Research Association of California, the American Legion and the Knights of Columbus.

Among them are: the construction of a college center within a high school and provision of aid to at-risk-youth. He crafted the NBPA Scholarship Program for students seeking undergraduate degrees.

For the last 10 years, he’s been overseeing the safety of students on school campuses. While he investigates incidents involving youth in the community, he upholds the relevance of reaching out to at-risk-students. His commitment to community is such that he selflessly provides his cellular phone number for general support, after-hours assistance, and directing youth to mental health services. Vladimir also works closely with school counselors, administrators, and psychologists to identify youth at risk to provide encouragement and guidance, instead of exposure to the criminal justice system.

Ballet Folklórico Viva Panamá

The Viva Panamá Organization was established in 1991 in San Fernando Valley when its director and family members realized that Panama's culture was not represented amongst the multicultural festivals in the Southern California area. Also, it was engendered by the intention to keep their children in contact with their culture. This led to the birth of its first project: "Ballet Folklórico Viva Panamá". Later, with the Consulate's help in spreading the word, a group of Panamanians started joining the group, which has over the years toured extensively. Locally, in more than sixty cities in California. At the national level, in Texas and Nevada. Internationally, this Ballet has visited Mexico, Puerto Rico, and Canada, exposing a wide variety of audiences to the picturesque and joyful traditions of Panamanian folk customs.

In April of 1999, VPO created "The Panamanian Cultural Arts Center" as a response to the need for more exposure to the Panamanian culture. The Center started coordinating displays and exhibitions, creating educational programs for museums, schools, universities, and other cultural centers. It also presented educational programs in elementary and high schools by teaching traditional dances from Panama.

In September of 2002, the official name of Viva Panamá Organization (VPO) merged from the fusion of these two first entities, as a way to provide a more comprehensive expression of the culture of Panama. VPO was incorporated on Aug. 3, 2012, in the state of California, and approved as a tax-exempt organization under section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code approved on Nov. 13, 2013. VPO's mission is to preserve, present and promote the many manifestations of the culture of Panama, through its music, dances, traditions, literature, paintings, arts & crafts, cuisine, its people, The mission is carried out by striving to provide the highest quality sample of the spirit and flavor of Panama to the multicultural population of California, and helping the socioeconomic development of Panama.

Since 2003, VPO sponsors another project called "Srta. Panamá California, which focuses on its youth by encouraging them to participate in sharing their culture and feel proud of their ancestry and heritage. The goal is to represent Panama in the different social, cultural events in the Los Angeles community. VPO has presented over time, 13 young ladies and guided them to represent Panama at a high level.

VPO has initiated a variety of cultural programs, including the "Ambassador Award" in 2011, recognizing the successes of notable Panamanians in all walks of American mainstream endeavors. VPO has paved the way for cultural exchanges between the U.S. and Panama, including the International Week of Panama in Los Angeles County in 2013. It has contributed in the inclusion of a Panamanian Band in the Rose Bowl Parade. In 2015. Also, VPO was finally able to create the "First Panamanian International Film Festival", co-directed by the Panamanian Hollywood actor and director, Carlos Carrasco, in association with NewFilmmakers/LA and sponsored by Union Bank for two years. This year joining its Sponsor Team is the Panama Film Commission from the Ministry of Commerce and Industries of Panama. VPO keeps always dreaming because that's how its visions have become a reality. It always seeks to create new programs to accomplish presenting a float at the Rose Parade and the opening of the Panamanian Cultural Arts Center.
