

Teaching vs. Learning

How well
an instructor teaches
is measured by
how proficiently
the student learns.

Teaching is
the path and the means;
learning is
the goal and the end.

In the house of wisdom
called a school
the guests are
the learners;
the teachers
are the servants.

At the table of knowledge called a classroom
those who dine are
the learners;
the teachers
are the waiters.

Teaching should be
a learning experience.

Therefore,
the best way to be a great teacher
is always to be an avid learner.

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski, February 6, 2000
Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com
www.fatherwaltersparish.org