I sadly lost my beloved Golden Retriever, Kara. She suddenly developed an aggressive form of cancer from which she could not recover. She came into my life as an energetic, fun loving puppy and was a joy from day one. She got on well with my two Dachshunds and endeared herself to everyone.

In her early years she enjoyed Obedience and Rally sessions but always had a special love for Fieldwork. Her CKC titles: CD, RA, WC, TD and UTD, earned her the CKC Versatility Advanced Award.

She also enjoyed Sprinters and got her Sprinter Excellent title.

We then got involved in Scent Detection, at both CKC and UKC events. She excelled in this area and obtained her Masters Titles in both CKC and UKC.

More importantly, she was a wonderful companion to family and friends alike.

She has left a hole in my heart and Zach and I miss her very much.

Healthy treats for our dogs..

Ingredients:

- 1/2 cup grated carrots
- 1/2 cup fresh or frozen blueberries (thawed and mashed if frozen)
- 1/2 cup rolled oats
- 1/4 cup whole wheat flour
- 1 egg

Instructions:

- 1 Preheat your oven to 350° F (175°C).
- 2 In a bowl, mix together the grated carrots and mashed blueberries.
3. Add the rolled oats, whole wheat flour, and beaten egg. Stir until well combined.
4. Roll the mixture into small balls and place them on a baking sheet lined with parchment paper.
5. Bake for 15-20 minutes, or until the balls are firm and lightly golden.
6. Allow the carrot & blueberry balls to cool completely before serving to your dog.

Did You Know: The “smell” center of a dog’s brain is 40 times larger than yours.

Dogs can smell thousands of times better than humans. Their noses have millions more scent receptors – for example, a human nose averages five million, while a Bloodhound’s nose has 300 million – making dogs useful for sniffing out drugs, dead bodies, bed bugs, explosives, and other things dogs can smell that humans can’t.

11 Surprising Things Dogs Smell That Humans Can’t:

#1 – People

You may wonder if your dog knows your smell and the answer is yes. Those fine-tuned sniffers can pick you out of a crowd, no problem. And this ability in dogs to smell people has made canines an important tool in locating missing persons.

#2 – Pregnancy

Our dogs know our scents, but when hormones start shifting in our bodies, we take on a bit of a different smell. Canines can smell these hormone changes too, especially in pregnant women. Though science has not yet found definitive proof, dog owners will tell you, dogs sense pregnancy.

#3 – Emotions

Emotions have a smell and they’re something dogs can smell that humans can’t. So, how do dogs smell our feelings? It comes back to hormones.

“When we have changes in our emotions, our hormones change as well (think of stress hormones like cortisol or adrenaline, or happy hormones like oxytocin),” explains Jen Jones, a professional dog trainer and behavior specialist. “These hormones are detectable by dogs in our breath and in our sweat.”

#4 – Coronavirus

Can dogs smell coronavirus?

Yes, dogs can smell Covid-19. Illnesses, like Covid-19, cause the human body to emit different odors in our saliva and sweat dogs can detect. There are several different studies that involve training dogs to detect Covid-19, and some countries have already started using Covid-19 sniffing dogs in safety protocols.

#5 – Cancer

You’ve probably heard that dogs smell cancer before and wondered if it’s true. Indeed, it has been proven to be a fact; dogs can smell cancer.

A 2019 study by BioScentDx found dogs could detect cancer in blood samples with an accuracy rate of 97%. As early detection is often the best hope in dealing with cancer, Heather Junqueira, lead researcher on the study, said, “A highly sensitive test for detecting cancer could potentially save thousands of lives and change the way the disease is treated.” Perhaps our dogs hold the answer to creating a much needed early-detection test.

#6 – Diabetes

Like cancer, dogs can smell diabetes as blood glucose levels can affect the way our breath smells. Thanks to dogs that have been trained to detect dropping blood sugar levels on the breath, people with severe diabetic conditions are finding help in avoiding major blood sugar emergencies.

#7 – Natural Disasters

Tales of dogs saving people from disasters like tornadoes and earthquakes have long been told. Is this heroic legacy due to the thought dogs can smell natural disasters? With their highly evolved olfactory senses, it would fit logic to assume dogs can sense changes in the atmosphere as well as impending doom on the wind. Whether from their heightened sense of smell or a special sixth sense, dogs will always be heroes in times of crisis.

#8 – Drugs

Dogs have long been used to find illegal drugs. Though criminals go to great lengths to disguise drugs, they can’t outsmart an olfactory sense that far outperforms our own. A hound’s nose knows! And it’s not just the nose itself that smells the chemicals better – the part of a dog’s brain that is devoted to analyzing smells is about 40 times greater than ours.

#9 – Explosives and Weapons

Trained dogs can detect fire accelerants such as gasoline in quantities as small as one-billionth of a teaspoon. Like drugs, explosives and weapons can be easily detected by trained dogs.

#10 – Bed Bugs

Just the mere mention of these pests can make us shiver, but there is good news. Dogs can smell bed bugs and pest control companies have even employed dogs to sniff them out.

But how do dogs find bedbugs? These nasty, little invaders produce an odor from their scent glands that’s easy to pick up with a high-powered snout. But with our weaker scent capabilities, people can only smell large infestations. In situations like bedbugs, it is better there are things dogs can smell that humans can’t.

#11 – Whale Poop

Dogs can smell whale poop up to 1.6 miles away. You really must check this out more – dogs use their poop-sniffing skills to save endangered whales!
