

Full On Communications CEO Jarret Adams Reappointed to U.S. Civil Nuclear Trade Advisory Committee

WASHINGTON, February 19, 2019 – Full On Communications Founder and CEO Jarret Adams has been reappointed by U.S. Secretary of Commerce Wilbur Ross to the Civil Nuclear Trade Advisory Committee (CINTAC). As part of this panel, Adams will support CINTAC’s mission to advise Secretary Ross on issues related to U.S. civil nuclear products and services.

CINTAC is comprised of private-sector representatives from the civil nuclear industry. They meet throughout the year discussing trade issues the U.S. nuclear sector faces, participate in policy discussions, as well as advising government officials.

“It’s an honor to receive this reappointment to CINTAC. I look forward to participating and helping America maintain its leadership role in nuclear energy, which with its ability to produce scalable, reliable, and carbon-free power can play a pivotal role in our meeting energy needs while combatting climate change,” Adams said.

About Full On Communications

Full On Communications helps the world’s leading nuclear energy organizations solve their communications challenges and achieve their strategic goals. We have worked with nuclear energy companies, organizations and governments in dozens of countries on four continents. Our principals have delivered outstanding results in every facet of the nuclear energy sector, from uranium mining and enrichment, to plant construction and operation, to used fuel management and government contracting.

Contact:

Stephen Dyke

sdyke@fulloncom.com