

Good People
vs.
Good for People

God calls us
to be good people—
but for whom?

Just being good
can satisfy ourselves;
being good for people
makes us consider
someone else.

Just being good
runs the risk
of superiority;
being good for people
elicits the demand
for service.

Just being good
can make us
proud;
being good for people
will keep us
humble.

Just being good
can mask
unworthy motives;
being good for people
will preserve
our integrity.

The reason
God gives the grace
to be good
is to extend
that goodness
to His people.

To test, therefore,
the quality of your
goodness,
examine whether
you are good
to and for people.

© Msgr. Walter Niebrzydowski
Sept. 28, 2003
Fr-Walter@nyc.rr.com
www.fatherwaltersparish.org