

Dining Out Northwest Style

NORTHWEST TRAVEL

20 TOP RESTAURANTS
OF THE NORTHWEST

BIG LITTLE CITIES

- Walla Walla, WA
- Vancouver, USA
- Eugene, OR
- Lewiston, ID

Fire Mountain

A Mountain Climbing Adventure

March 1993 • $2.95

0 74470 78063 2

COVER STORIES

Big Little Cities

Some small towns have it all: a good quality of life, culture, plenty of activities for people of all ages, and respect for their own history. We profile four that fit the bill.

Eugene, Oregon

30

When Eugene Skinner discovered this place he thought it would make an ideal place to live. Enough Oregonians agree to make Eugene the state's second-largest city.

Vickie Nelson

Lewiston, Idaho

18

Your first visit to Lewiston may be to attend the Lewiston Roundup, ride a jetboat into Hells Canyon, or visit the Four Nation Pow Wow hosted by the Nez Perce.

But you'll find other reasons to return.

Judy Fleagle

Vancouver, USA

22

It's been 36 years since Vancouver, Washington, was named an All-America City. visitors will discover there are plenty of reasons why the title is still deserved.

Marian Behan Hammer

Walla Walla, Washington

26

One of the oldest settlements between the Rockies and the Cascades, Walla Walla is home to world-famous onions and one of the largest hot air balloon festivals in the Northwest.

George Herbert

Dining Out In the Pacific Northwest

34

We've asked some of the region's top food writers and editors to recommend their favorite spots for a memorable meal. Here's what they told us.

Fraternity on Fire Mountain

12

Mt. Rainier offers a mighty challenge for a mountain climber wannabe. Just one of the obstacles is meeting the expectations of the famous guides who will try to get you to the top.

Eric Mason

NORTHWEST FEATURES

- B.C.'s Interior High Country 46
Outdoor activities from houseboating to riding in a trail drive to a world fly-fishing championship are in the works for 1993 throughout this spectacular region of British Columbia.
- Fly-In Fishing at River's Inlet, B.C. 9
How do you tell one fly-in salmon lodge from another? A veteran fishing writer offers a few hints on reading between the lines of the glossy brochures. Jack Berryman
- La Conner Tulip Festival 61
For thousands of visitors, the La Conner, Washington, Tulip Festival is a rite of spring not to be missed. Andrea Katres
- Mark Hemstreet, A Man With A Plan 59
Mark Hemstreet, owner of Shilo Inns, has chalked up a host of innkeeping and business awards with his rapidly growing chain, but he most enjoys being a good neighbor. Rob Spooner
- Victorian Spring 56
Victoria, B.C. celebrates the coming of spring earlier than many cities, and the annual flower count is a harbinger of the blooms to come. Dave Peden

12

9

COVER PHOTO

Claude Guigon, maitre 'd, welcomes guests to the Sun Valley Lodge dining room.

Photo Courtesy
Sun Valley Company

DEPARTMENTS

- Back Page 67
"Why?"
- Classified Ads 66
- From the Publisher 4
- Letters to the Editor 8
- Northwest News 6
- Photographers This Issue 66
- Worth a Stop 63

PUBLICATION NOTICE

Vol. 3, No. 1 • February/March 1993
Northwest Travel (ISSN 1059-9681), published bi-monthly by Northwest Regional Magazines with business offices located at 1525 12th (PO Box 18000), Florence, OR 97439-0130. Second Class postage paid at Florence, OR, and additional mailing offices.

Subscriptions are $14.95 per year (6 issues); $26.95 for 2 years (12 issues). Foreign: $7.00 additional per year.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Northwest Travel, PO Box 18000, Florence, OR 97439-0130.

Fly-In Fishing at Rivers Inlet, British Columbia

Story and Photos
by Jack W. Berryman

Rivers Inlet has been one of British Columbia's best-known fishing destinations since the 1950s, with tye salmon (chinooks over 30 pounds), and silver or coho salmon reaching the mid-20-pound range.

This 30-mile-long ocean fjord along B.C.'s rugged central coastline is about an hour's floatplane ride northeast of Port Hardy on the northern tip of Vancouver Island. Every year from June through September all five Pacific salmon species enter the mouth of Rivers Inlet from Fitz Hugh Sound and course their way up the inlet to one of the many rivers flowing into its extreme eastern end.

Rivers Inlet is 80 miles from the closest road and a very difficult destination for private boaters because of numerous navigational obstacles, frequent fog, and the lack of fueling facilities. One of the most scenic and picturesque areas in the Northwest, Rivers Inlet is home for the bald eagle, grizzly bear, cougar, deer, wolf, and river otter. But it is the trophy salmon that continue to lure tourists who hope to land a world-record tye or a reel-sizzling coho. Every year salmon in the 60- to 70-pound range are caught in Rivers Inlet and transported to taxidermists throughout the world.

Because of Rivers Inlet's secluded nature, the fishing lodges located strategically up and down the inlet are accessible only by floatplane. Most of the lodges are replacements for the former salmon canneries that once dotted the shoreline, while others have been built entirely on floating barges and anchored in protected bays. For example, Salmon King Lodge occupies the former Good Hope Cannery property, while Big

Above: Guests arriving by floatplane at one of the several lodge docks in Rivers Inlet.

Springs is built on movable barges. These lodges operate in the summer months only and pride themselves on luxury accommodations, fine dining, and well-equipped fishing services. Most of the lodges offer complete all-inclusive fishing packages and frequently advertise in outdoor magazines and at sportsman's shows.

Once you have decided to travel to this beautiful area to try your hand at catching some of the famous Rivers Inlet salmon, how do you decide which lodge to visit? The first concern should be your budget. Typical packages are 4 days/3 nights, 5 days/4 nights, and 7 days/6 nights, and usually range from $1070, to $1995, to $2695 for each of the three options. These prices are in U.S. dollars and include airfare from Seattle or Vancouver. However, you must be cautious in surveying prices since some lodges quote their costs in Canadian currency, some do not include airfare, and others do not include food. For example, King Salmon Resort offers the 4-day/3-night package for $1070, round trip from Vancouver. However, that price is based on a double-occupancy cottage. Black Gold offers a 5-day/4-night package for $800 Canadian, not including airfare. On the other hand, Salmon King Lodge packages are all-inclusive. You should also check on other possible hidden costs for fish freight charges and determine how much deposit is required, when the full amount is due, and whether cancellation fees are charged.

It is also a good idea to determine what type of sleeping arrangements and bathroom facilities are provided. Some lodges have private rooms and baths while others have one large bathroom. Are showers available, and are fresh linens provided? What about extra amenities such as a sauna or hot tub?

Some lodges serve entrees equivalent to a fine restaurant's, feature hors d'oeuvres every evening, and provide lunches, coolers, and Thermoses to take in your boat. Some have full-time chefs. Salmon King Lodge is one example. Other lodges give you reduced rates if you bring your own food. Meal hours should also be checked to determine whether they interfere with good fishing times in the early morning and late evening.

Elaine Berryman, author's wife, with two Rivers Inlet coho caught in early September.

One of the most important aspects of your "once in a lifetime" fishing trip to Rivers Inlet is the boat, equipment, and tackle you will use. You should expect quality name-brand gear in top working order that will be yours to use for the duration of your stay. Boats typically range from 14 to 16 feet with outboards from 15 to 40 h.p. Remember that Rivers

Inlet is 30 miles long so a larger, safer, and faster boat will provide you with more maneuverability, which can convert to more and better fishing. Extra equipment such as rod holders, fish finder, compass, and map make the likelihood of fishing success even greater. For example, Salmon King Lodge provides 16-foot V-hull Fiberglass boats with 40 h.p. Mercury outboards and Humminbird fish finders. Some other lodges provide only little "kicker" boats. In addition, determine whether the lodge provides floater coats, rain gear, and boots in case of inclement weather. Finally, inquire about bait and gas, whether there is an extra charge for lost tackle, and if a fishing license is provided or available on site.

LODGE & FISHING RESORT

The Secluded Island Resort that Offers the Finest in Food, Lodging and Fishing

RESERVATIONS:
(604) 285-2222
FAX: (604) 285-2411

PO Box 1, Campbell River, B.C. V9W 4Z9

Circle No. 148 on AD INFO CARD

