

THE LAST SONG

By John Lipinski

This is the last song, I'll ever write for you
I've said it all, and now there's nothing left, for me to do
I gave up my heart, didn't change your point of view
I'd give my everything, just to share a life with you

The days dwindle down, to only a precious few
I just don't know, how many are left, wanted to spend them with you
So the time now has come, to let you go your way
It's apparent to me, you feel differently, won't ask you to stay

I wanted you to feel the happiness
Someone was missing in your dreams
A last song won't keep us both together
Now we'll never know, for sure, it seems

This is the last song, I'll ever write for you
You know I've said it all, to you, a time or two
I gave you my heart, couldn't change your point of view
You could've had my everything, sharing a life with you

I thought that you and me, would be an us
Best friends for life, in God we trust
A last song should last us both, forever
So, goodbye, my love, goodbye, we must

My days are almost gone, have only a precious few
I just don't know, how many are left, wanted to spend them with you
The time now has come, to let you be on your way
I'm at the end of the line, have to leave you behind, won't ask you to stay
With a smile on my face, no one else could replace you, anyway
