PERSONAL STATEMENT:

Dr. Faiman has become an exemplary leader in bringing critical knowledge in cancer nursing to clinical providers-locally, nationally and internationally. She demonstrates enthusiasm for continuous learning by conducting innovative research, and has demonstrated the importance of using and integrating new medical knowledge within nursing practices. As an advanced practice nurse at the Cleveland Clinic, she led institutional quality initiatives to lessen chemotherapy wait times for cancer patients. Dr. Faiman received her Bachelor of Science degree from Ursuline Academy in 1996, a Master of Science in nursing at Kent State University in Ohio in 2002, and a PhD in clinical research and nursing from Case Western Reserve University in 2014. A founding member of the International Myeloma Foundation Nurse Leadership Board since 2006, she also successfully lobbied to enhance nurse-prescribing privileges that year. In 2014, she co-developed nurse-led consult clinics to expedite diagnosis and management of thrombosis in cancer patients, and plasma cell disorders. Faiman is a clinical member of the Case Comprehensive Cancer Center (Case CCC) under the Cancer Prevention, Control and Population (CPC) Research Program.

Faiman is currently an adult nurse practitioner in the Department of Hematology/Oncology at the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio. She has edited several books and authored many chapters and research papers, and led the development of International Myeloma management guidelines, including Editor of the 3rd Edition of the Multiple Myeloma Textbook for Nurses by ONS publishing company (2021), and the first Blood and Marrow Certification Manual for Nurses (2017). Faiman influenced cancer care practice by presenting at numerous international and US national conferences, and served as lecture chair at many of them. In 2013, Dr. Faiman served as co-chair of the 1st Nursing Symposium at the International Myeloma Workshop in Kyoto, Japan and subsequent conferences, which includes the 6th nursing symposium in Los Angeles in 2022. Her scholarly publications and presentations are highly cited by peers and colleagues. She has been invited Chair and participant in over 110 live and virtual programs over the last 5 years.

Faiman is the recipient of numerous awards and accolades. In 2023, Faiman was given the NP/PA Educator of Distinction Award in Multiple Myeloma. In 2022, Faiman was named the Top NP in Hematology/Oncology awarded by POCN; and inducted as an inaugural Fellow of Advanced Practice in Oncology (FAPO) awarded by the Advanced Practitioner Society for Hematology and Oncology (APSHO). Faiman is a Distinguished Fellow in the American Academy of Nursing (FAAN) and held an appointment on the American Board of Internal Medicine Hematology maintenance of certification committee. She received awards from 2013 Oncology Nursing Society awards for Medical excellence and Patient Education; as well as the Case Western Reserve University Dean's Legacy Award for Outstanding Doctor of Philosophy studies. Dr. Faiman was previously Editor-in-Chief of The Oncology Nurse NP/PA and section editor for American Society of Hematology Clinical News. She currently serves as Editor-in-Chief of Journal of the Advanced Practitioner in Oncology (JADPRO), the official publication of APSHO. Dr. Faiman demonstrates energy for advancing cancer care and immerses herself in national and international programs, services and leadership work within myeloma communities.
